TIME FOR

Industriously trying to work out the solution to a difficult problem in physics, Tom Lieser, senior, typifies the deeply-absorbed study bug.

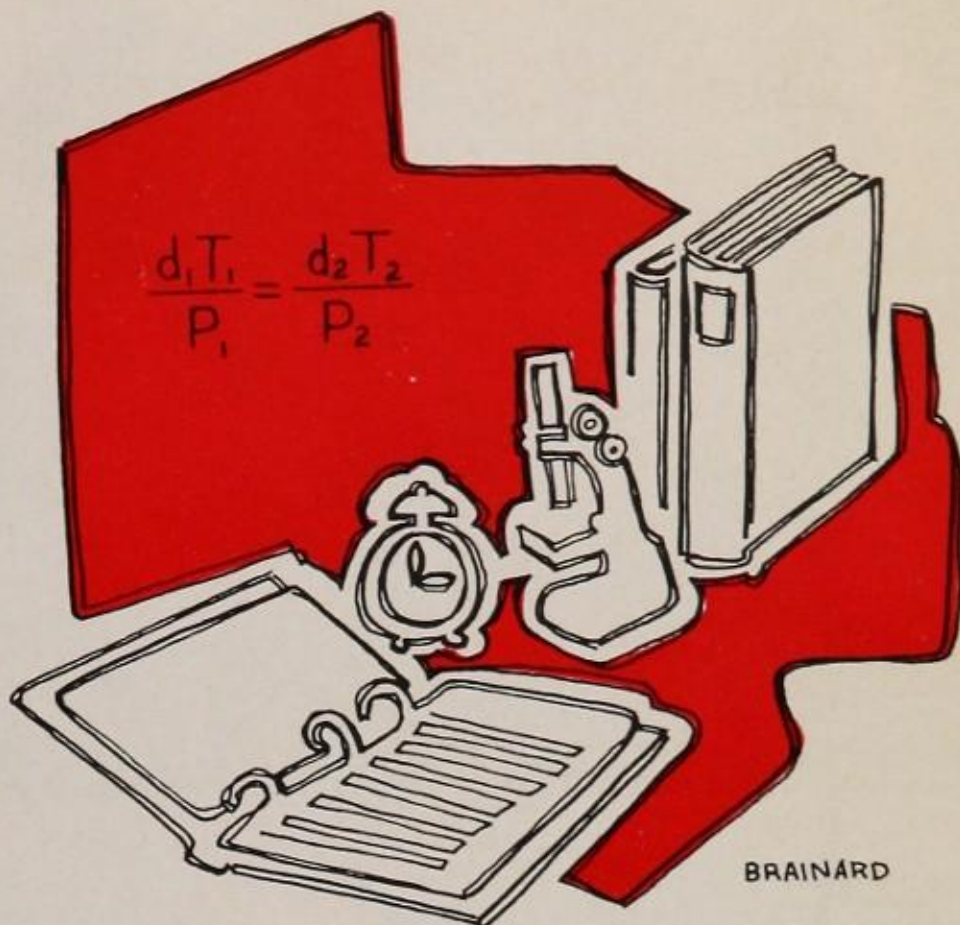

[4]'

Mr. Chulin Toktang, jovial visitor from Thailand, gives a glimpse of faraway places while telling a history class about his native land.

DISCOVERY

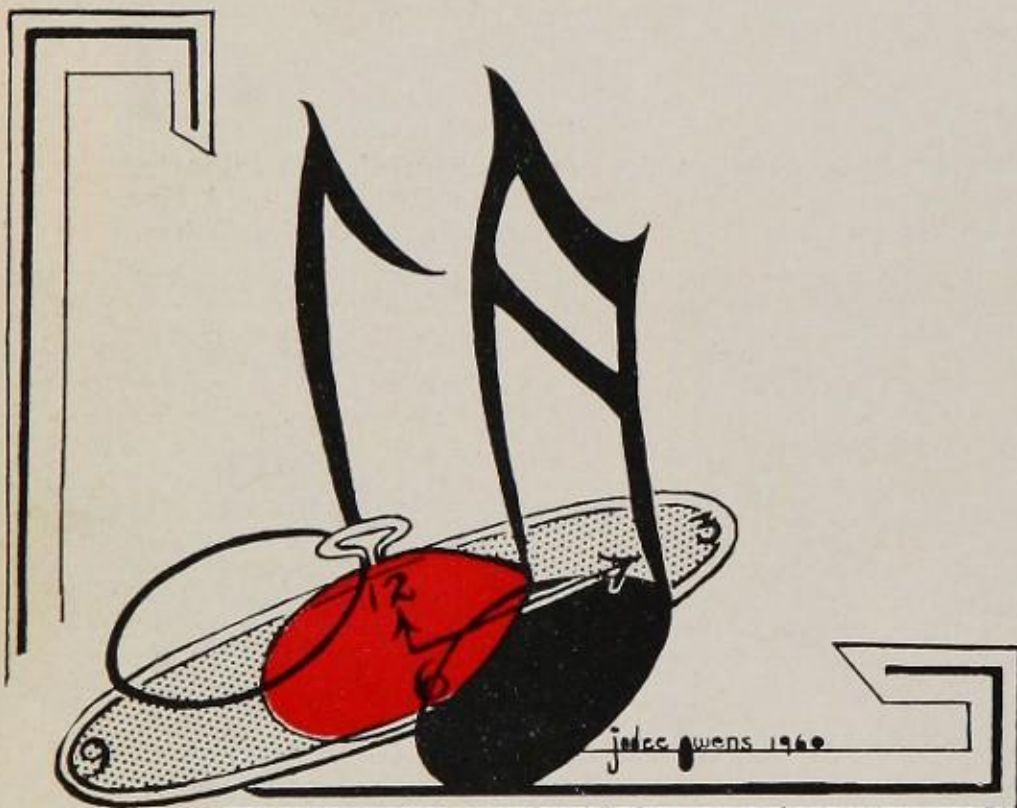

Mr. Russell Charles indicates the exact location of Constantinople, ancient capital of Charlemagne's empire, to interested world history students—Art McColpin, LaDonna Barkley, and Carolyn Wilson.

John Halka proves to Pam Quisenberry and Miss Vella Frazee's plane geometry class that triangles ABC and DEF are congruent.

Demonstrating an Israeli folk dance, Becky Sauerwein, Sudie Trippet, Jeanne Kishner, Kay Boatright, Nancy Newton, Linda Rosenthal, Marcella Roop, Tita Stern, Carolyn Anderson, and Jackie Neal take Central students on a magic "Journey to Israel."

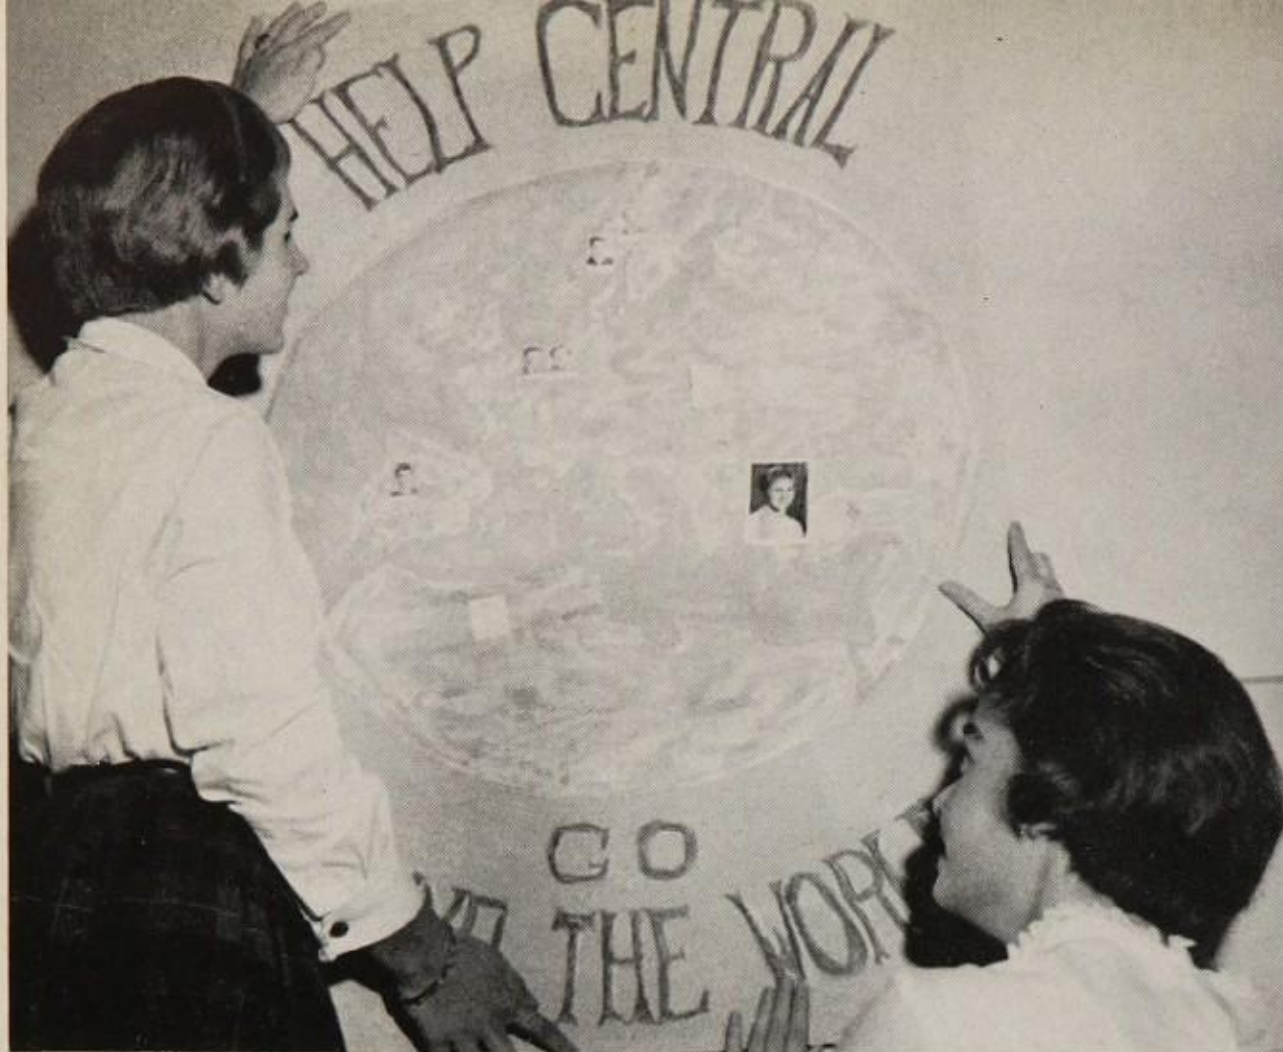

Learning the art of playing some typical Venezuelan instruments, Anne Kepler and Gordon Loucks have a fine teacher, Louise Dickey, who spent two years in Venezuela.

TIME FOR ORIGINALITY

Trying to capture proper perspective and effective shading, Liz Simpson, junior, deftly sketches the still-life model.

Two enthusiastic AFS boosters—Carolyn Clark and her wide-eyed Turkish “sister,” Ayse Ercetin—place a sign in the hall urging students to give coins to “Help Central Go Around the World!”

TIME FOR COMPANIONSHIP

Eating, talking, and enjoying the company of new-found friends, Central's sophomores have a wonderful time on their October cookout, held in Owen Park. Such expressions as “Pass the mustard please,” “Hey, that’s my hotdog!” “I’m certainly having fun,” and “This surely tastes good,” heard often at this picnic, loudly proclaim the fabulous success of the annual event.

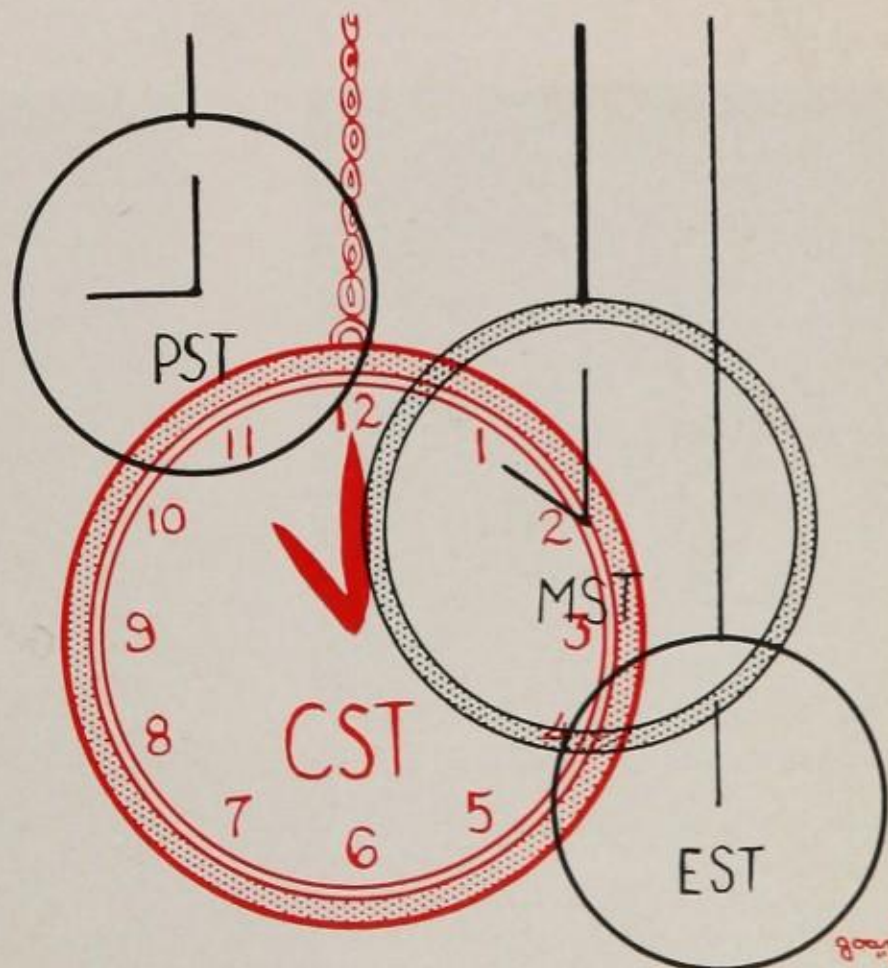

When the summer comes to an end, so must carefree, fun-filled days, as the school bell summons students back to the three R's once more. Juniors enrolling find themselves confused, in spite of the efficient procedure; for re-uniting with old friends and exchanging experiences of the past three months make students almost overlook the real purpose of enrollment.

Tom Colpitts playfully tousles the blonde locks of Beth Barrett, as they meet for a customary hall interlude between classes.

TIME FOR EXUBERANCE

Playing the school songs, leading the cheering with a roll of the drums, and entertaining with precision drills at half-time, the marching band contributes much toward school spirit and loyalty at the football games. The fine performances are the result of much practice before school under the guidance of Mr. Don Linde, director, and John Essley, drum major.

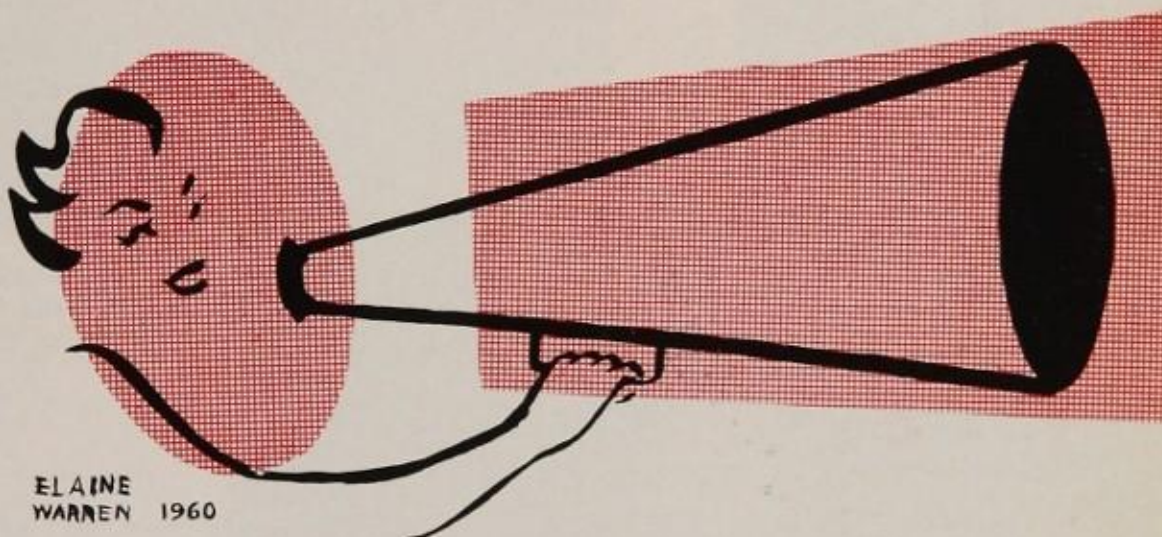

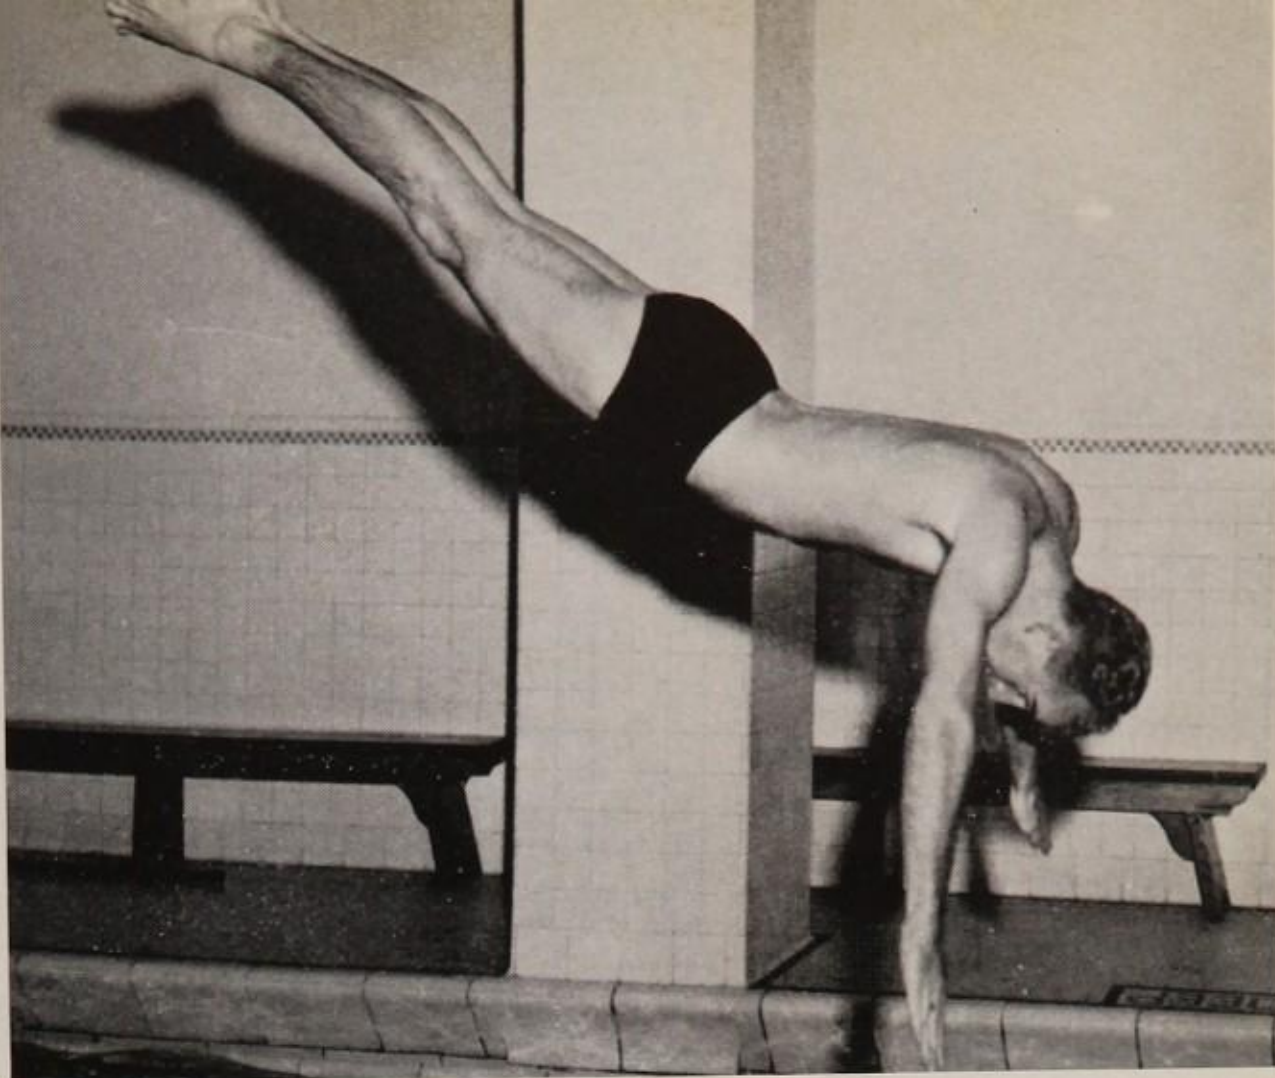

"Come on, Braves!" shouts Mary Schooler with an uncontrollable burst of enthusiasm, as Central scores another touchdown.

A ruthless tribe of Braves on the warpath viciously scalps a helpless "Roper," in anticipation of the Central-Rogers game.

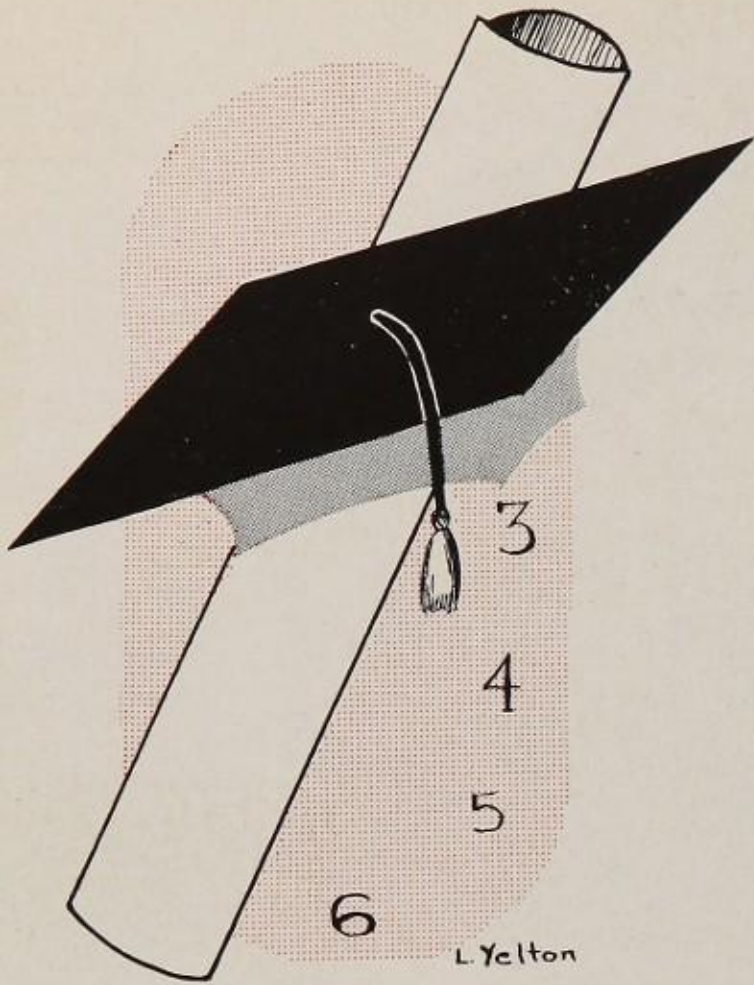

Spending more time in training than in actual performance, Bill Horney leads the swimming team in diving as he demonstrates one of his specialties, a well-performed jack-knife.

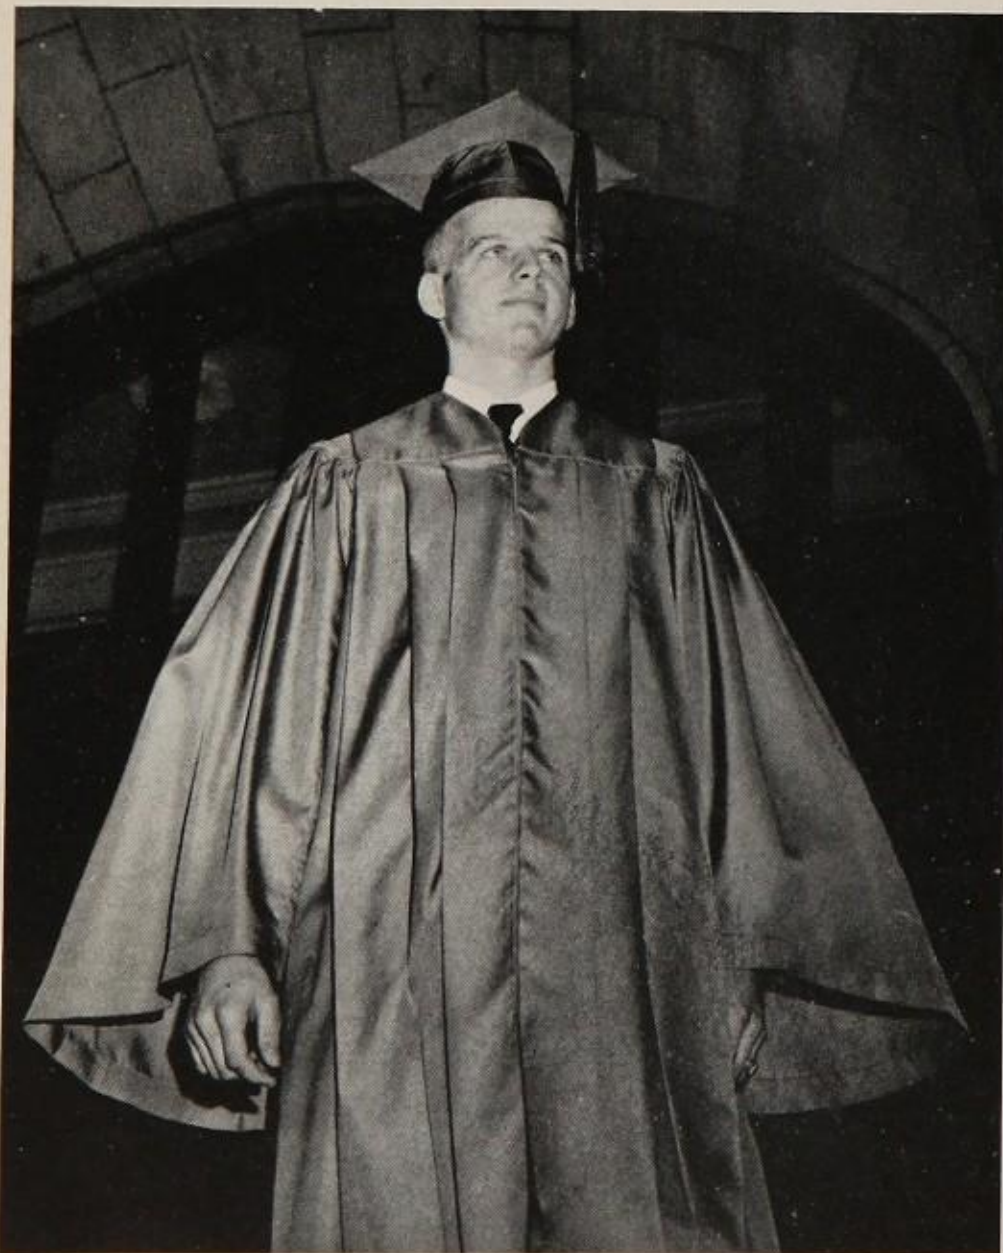

Heartily rooting Centralites, lead by the enthusiastic cheerleaders, give the football team a rousing send-off at the practice field. Pep rallies, like this one, show boys who spend hours training that boosters back them one hundred per cent.

Inspiration runs high when voices of Jo Crider and Richard Kilgore blend in perfect harmony to fill the auditorium with melody and lyrics.

Descending the north steps for the last time as a high school student, Dave Jackson gazes at the horizon, thinking of the new, enlarging life and the many added responsibilities that graduation brings to seniors.

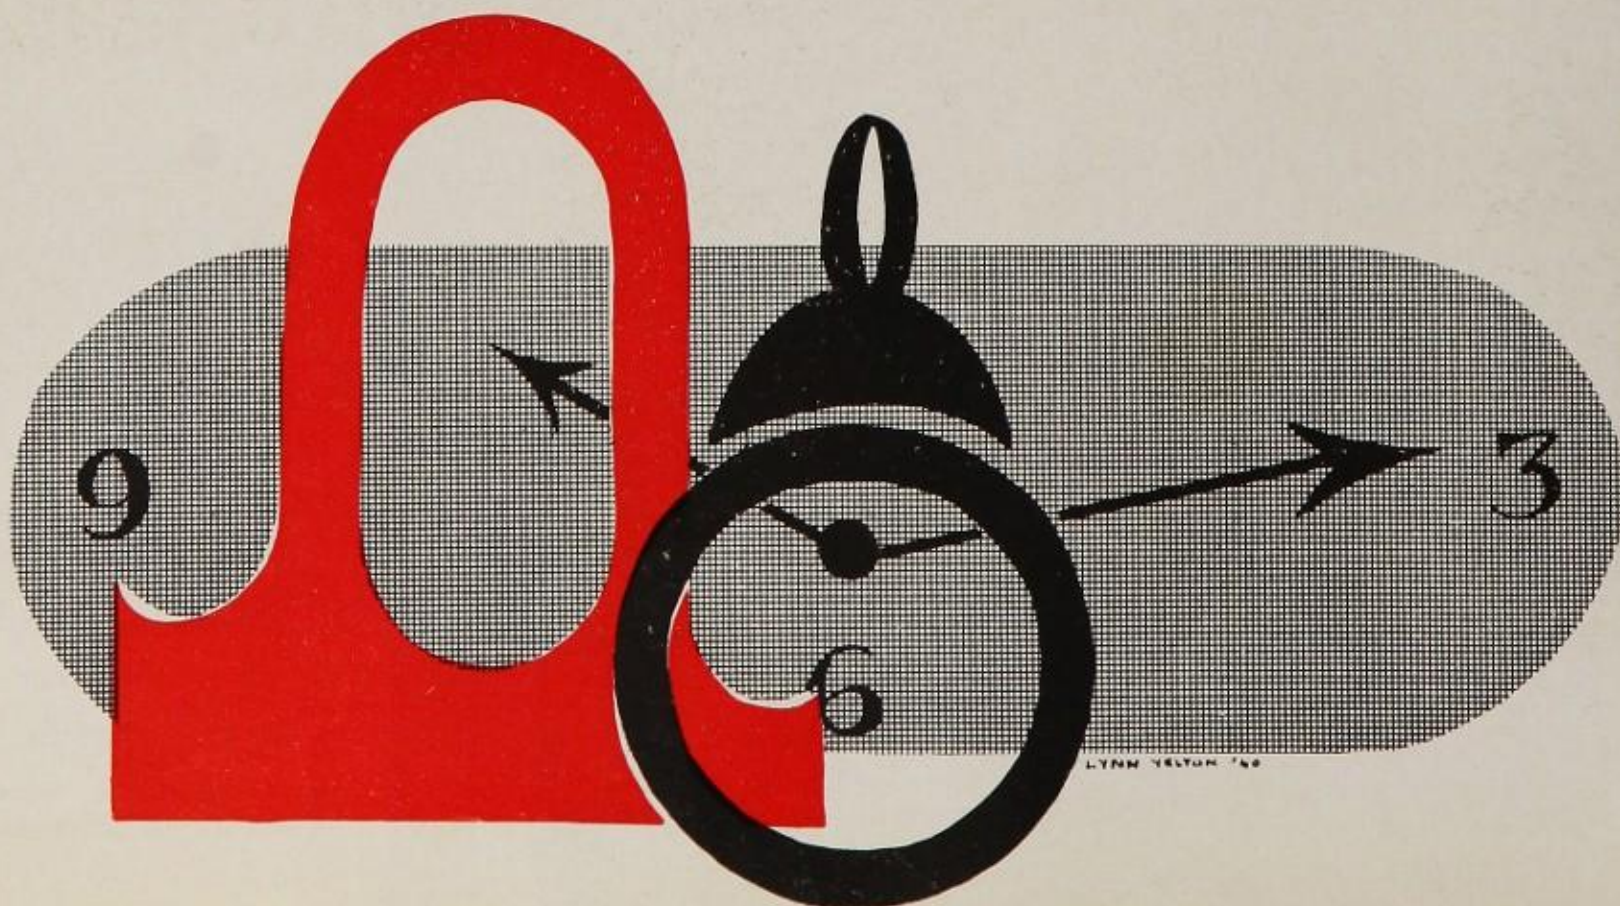

In a solemn tableau commemorating those brave men who sacrificed their lives in World War I, Dave Jackson, Richard Dick, Larry Hannah, and Bill Horney portray a poignant setting—"In Flanders Fields."

TIME FOR INSPIRATION

Unconscious of reality, Judy Rickman drifts into her own dream land, full of the enchantment and wonder which enhances the world of any 15-year-old.

A chorus of heavenly hosts adds to the awe-inspiring simplicity of a traditional nativity scene in the annual Christmas program.

Art Department Classes Offer Expression of Personality

For those who are interested, art is gratifying because it can be an outlet for tensions. First-year art offered a study of lives and styles of famous painters and of the fundamentals of painting and drawing. Painting, which improved individual style, added new techniques. Commercial art was concerned with the more practical use of art. Costume design combined color combination with fabric study. In interior decoration students completely furnished a model home. Art V illustrated the Tom Tom.

Vocal, Instrumental Music Present Polished Programs

The music department did much to provide entertainment for the students at Central. Throughout the year musicians entertained with vocal and instrumental solos, the annual Christmas concert and other special assemblies, and the musical comedy, Oklahoma. Mr. Don Linde, instrumental director, and Mr. Rex Teague, vocal instructor, worked together with classes to give finished performances to their audiences. Mrs. Frances Wellmon Anderson did most of the accompanying.

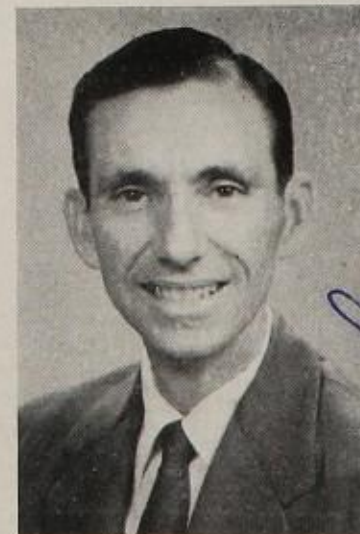

Mr. Don Linde and Gordon Loucks plan revisions and amendments which they hope will be added to the band's constitution.

Foreign Language Department Studies Speech, Customs

Students enrolled in foreign language classes learned, not only to speak languages fluently, but also to know the customs of the countries they were studying through text books, tape recorders, film strips, and movies.

Something new for Central was started—a Spanish club sponsored by two teachers, Mrs. Mary Pottorf and Mrs. Frances Grady. Also in the Spanish department colorful “pinatas,” clay shells filled with goodies to eat, were made and then broken for the classes at their Christmas parties.

Latin classes read stories of Rome and ancient Italy. French classes enjoyed the pictures and stories of France.

Two years of French and four years of Spanish and Latin were offered, according to Mrs. Velma Reeves, department chairman.

Business Education Gives Students Fine Office Training

In preparation for running the duplicating machine Ellamae Fields, a senior enrolled in first hour office practice, makes the necessary adjustments.

Business education courses offered many advantages to students though the comprehensive curriculum which included clerical training, office practice, bookkeeping, shorthand, records management, business law, typewriting, business machines, and business arithmetic, enabling pupils to acquire vocational competence and take their place in the business world in competition with other office employees.

Mr. V. B. Hawes, department chairman, emphasized that business education courses also had value for the college-bound student. For instance, typing skill is now almost a necessity at college. Knowledge of shorthand, another business course, is particularly helpful in a lecture class. Everyone needs to know proper methods of filling out income tax returns and of keeping his personal records.

Largest Department in School Perfects Language Usage

Walt Walters and Mrs. Julia Backleff look over pictures of scenes from Shakespeare's 'Hamlet,' used to make the story become more realistic to everyone.

Largest in the school, the English department offered 93 classes to sophomores, juniors, and seniors, under the instruction of 24 teachers. Always the main objective was to develop in students better ways to read, to write, to speak, and to listen.

Sophomores began their year with an orientation unit to acquaint them with their school, their classmates, and their instructors. Then followed a study of American literature and of mechanics of English.

For the junior year English literature and techniques of grammar and composition were the main pattern of study.

Senior English was divided by semesters into literature—a close study of a few classics or of world literature—and composition, both oral and written, with grammar and vocabulary study.

Elective Courses in Language Arts Need Recommendation

Besides the regular language arts classes required of all students who expect to graduate, several elective courses were available to those who could get the recommendations and who could find the time.

Speech arts, either beginning or advanced, presented opportunity for practice in both dramatics and debate. Out of the advanced classes came casts for the two speech arts plays and the chairmen for many of the assemblies.

Designed to develop talent, creative writing was a first semester course in writing contest papers, original paragraphs, essays, short stories, and poetry.

For students interested in journalism the newspaper, School Life, and the yearbook, Tom Tom, afforded practical experience with problems of publication.

Smiling as though the task is a pleasure, Miss Mayme Mayes checks out copies of a new grammar text, 'Enjoying English,' to her third hour junior English class.

History and Social Studies Explain Recorded Past Events

Miss Edna Newkirk points out to Tom Rush examples of Roman architecture, one of the cultural areas covered in ancient and medieval history classes this year.

History is the branch of knowledge that records and explains past events. Because it has a tendency to repeat itself, it gives to students a reasonable ability to foresee the future.

The history and social studies department offered seven courses. United States history, a survey course of American history, was required of all sophomores. Juniors and seniors had a choice of several histories—ancient and medieval, covering the period from prehistoric times to 1763; world, a survey course; Oklahoma; or consumer economics. Available to seniors only were modern, covering the period from 1789 to the present; or community, emphasizing local history especially.

Four credits in history were required to graduate. Two must have been obtained in United States history, and two others in any electives.

Homemaking Teaches Gracious Living

The homemaking department, directed by Mrs. Ora Mayberry, helped students have a happy, healthy life. Foods classes taught modern ways to prepare and serve meals. Personal development provided greater self-understanding, thus making understanding others easier. Clothing clinic showed girls the styles and colors best suited for them. The opportunity of learning how to make garments was offered in clothing. Home management students built a model "dream home," while home nursing gave training in care of the ill.

Students Supplied with Practical Training in Industry

Learning the skills of auto mechanics, Gerald Maxwell and Mike Randall get some advise from Mr. Roy Trimm about how to adjust a carburetor correctly.

Besides the usual beginning program in industrial and vocational education, the department offered three-period advanced courses in auto mechanics, drafting, machine shop, printing, and woodwork, which supplied students with enough training to earn a livelihood in these fields.

Two classes of juniors and seniors wanting to earn money and prepare for a job as well took advantage of the cooperative programs in which students attended school one-half day and worked the other half. Distributive education provided an opportunity to get training in the field of retailing. Diversified occupations was designed to give on-the-job experience in a trade of an industrial nature.

Science Classes Open Doors to Discovery and Progress

As part of their geology course, Dick Davidson, Donald Masingale, and Richard Geiger attempt to identify an unknown mineral from the collection of Mr. Ernest McHugh.

Working toward a better future, students of science diligently learned the miracles of the world about them. Within the variety of the seven classes—physics, chemistry, advanced physical science, biology, physiology-psychology, geography, and geology — each student could find the science in which he was most interested.

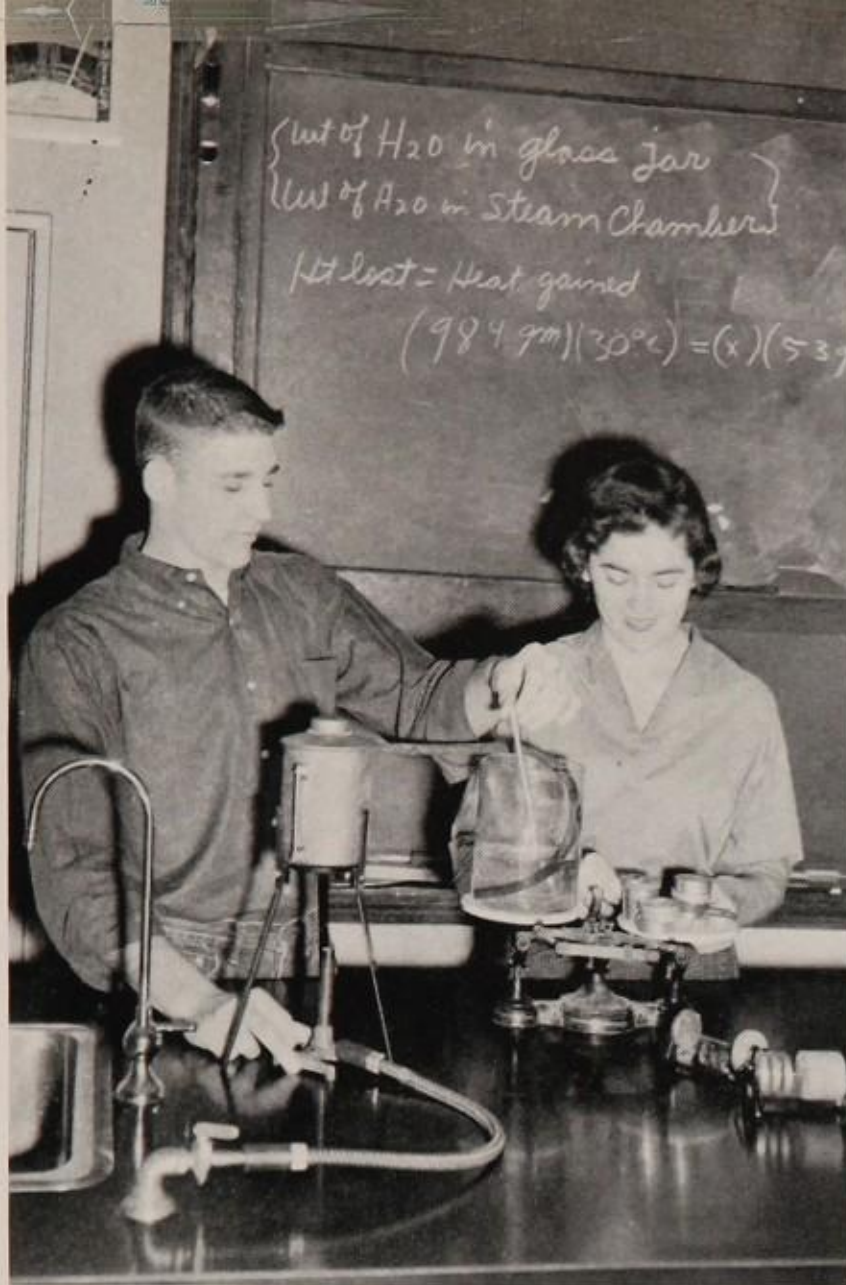

Well-qualified teachers were aided by modern equipment in achieving excellence. Mr. Felix Vestal, chairman, reported that four new teachers and a recently remodeled physics laboratory were added to increase the efficiency of this department. Performing experiments, watching films, and recording observations made science a reality to those who accepted the challenge of a better world tomorrow.

Boys Participate in Athletics to Improve Body and Mind

Boys' physical education offered a variety of courses. The first quarter all sophomore boys were enrolled in a gym class that introduced the methods used in this department. Calisthenics, which occupied a major portion of the class time, developed muscular coordination.

Juniors who were not enrolled in sixth hour gym took touch football first quarter. The second nine weeks boys who could not pass a swimming test were required to take beginners' swimming. Others had a choice of basketball or wrestling.

The third nine weeks swimming, physical fitness, and wrestling were offered. During the last quarter boys had a choice of three out-door sports—tennis, track, or softball.

Although a life-saving course was not offered in the regular schedule, those interested were given some instruction before school. Mr. William C. Lantz was the chairman of boys' physical education.

Physical Education Has Something to Offer Every Girl

Even as Plato taught his pupils years ago that gymnastics was an essential activity of a well-rounded person, so the Central gym teachers spent much time helping girls develop physically. The girls enrolled in the physical education department found that training required much thought and concentration. Body development was far from being a "cinch" course of study!

Always alive with activity, the physical education department had something to offer every girl. Miss Madeleine McDonald, department chairman, had classes in individual corrective gym and was available for counseling all girls with posture problems. Swimming, hockey, and cageball were primarily for the sophomores. The junior girls spent many class periods playing ping-pong, tennis, and mini-minton. Both classes participated in volleyball and modern dance activities. Each student was not only taught the mechanics of playing certain games, but also was given experience in the art of being a good winner or loser.

Nancy Tracy, Wanda Clapp, Eleanor Borland, and Jo Anna Hill plan ways to hit the bull's eye while they develop healthy muscular coordination.

Special Education Programs Benefit Many Enrollees

The special education department provided instruction in courses which were not a regular part of the curriculum. To learn how to drive correctly, many students twice a week took lessons. Their theory class met at eight o'clock three mornings a week.

Lip reading and vocabulary study were only two things taught in the special courses for the deaf by Mr. Cecil Scott, who spent afternoons at Central. He used class time to help the handicapped students with the regular courses in which they were enrolled.

Library Furnishes Information and Pleasure to Students

Staff members order books, type records, and file cards —Mrs. Thelma Myer, assistant librarian; Jo Anne Clark and Ruth Ann Cason, seniors; Helen Hagler, librarian.

"Libraries are not made; they grow." This statement was proved by the growth of Central's library from 8,214 books in 1924 to approximately 22,900 books this year.

An average of 248 books was checked out daily. Students often used the library to finish homework and to do research work.

The clerical, maintenance, and cafeteria staffs, the nurse, and the matron kept the school in smooth running order.

The office issued daily bulletins, enrolled students, recorded grades, kept attendance and other data, sent transcripts to colleges, wrote recommendations, and did many other necessary routine matters. Cafeteria workers made sure that the proper food was available for the student lunches. To keep the building clean and comfortable, maintenance men and women worked around the clock.

The matron with the assistance of the school nurse, who was on duty every morning, took care of the students that became ill during the day. The bookstore had supplies including everything from ink to paper clips.

Making available to students the necessary school supplies, Miss Jack Benninghoff, bookstore manager, sells a package of notebook paper to Jimmy Ragle.

Senior Year Brings Fun and Achievement to Class of '60

To make the class assemblies, play campaigning, Senior Week, and commencement activities memorable, Miss Mary Ellen Bridges, sponsor, works with many seniors who plan the exciting events.

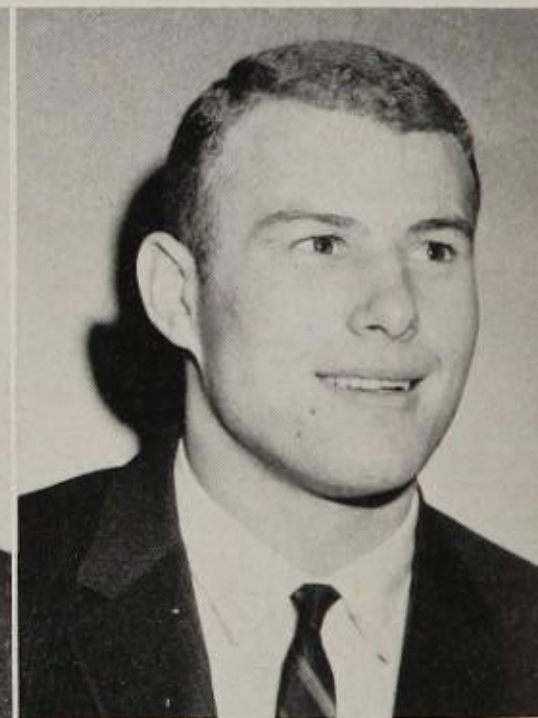

Although a scarcity of boys added little to the week-ends of many senior girls, nevertheless most seniors found their last year at Central to be filled with achievement and gaiety.

In the early fall her classmates elected Gini Wyant as Miss Central High XXXIX. Soon came time for the exceptionally fine and amusing class play, Charlie's Aunt, and with it spirited competition between "Lovers" and "Chaperones." A great number of Centralites became National Merit finalists, marking scholastic excellence for the class of '60. As spring and graduation drew near, cap and gown measurements were taken, announcements ordered, and plans made for an exciting Senior Week—all anticipating the end of an unforgettable year!

Able leading the senior class in its multifarious activities are the elected officers—Dick Baldwin, president; Tom Tomshany, vice-president; Karen Slaybaugh, secretary; Susan Goeppinger, treasurer.

Always willing to lend a helping hand to a senior in distress, Mrs. Erskine Stanberry, counselor, greets with her usual good cheer the endless tasks she faces.

The Senior "Christmas Party" promises to be a really gala affair, in view of the carefully planned, detailed preparations going on in its anticipation. Miss Mary Ellen Bridges, Louise German, Rickey Burden, and Nancy Miner put the finishing touches on the lavishly-decorated Christmas tree which is to appear on the stage, besides making a last-minute check of the "surprise packages" to be distributed to each home room. These brightly colored boxes contain festive miniature stockings, filled with delectable goodies, for every senior class member. As the names of the teachers are called, representatives from the respective home rooms will receive their favors. The committee makes certain that no home room is left out.

Although Mr. Aubrey Baer, one of the senior counselors, has much book work to do, his welcoming smile indicates he thinks each student is his most important job.

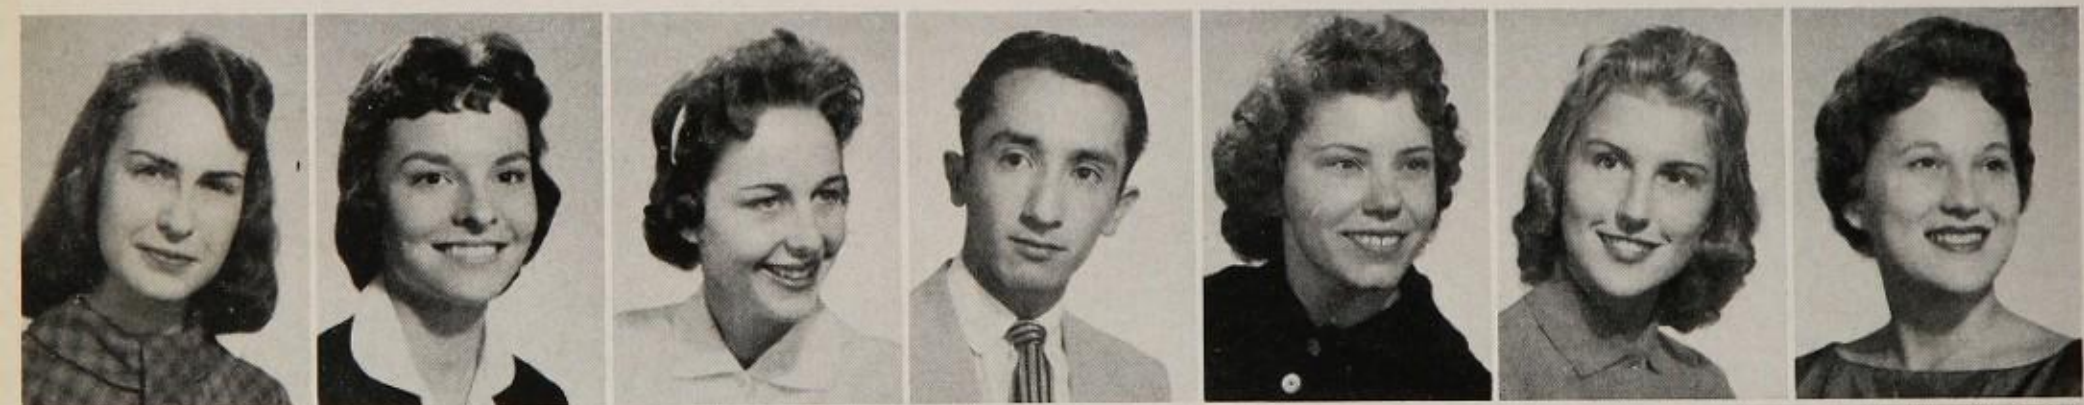

Busy with her daily first hour occupation of managing senior attendance, Mrs. Ruth Hale—also a homemaking teacher—fills out a pass for senior, Russell Snively; her congenial smile is a pleasant welcome for students who have been ill or away.

Seniors

As Miss Mary Ellen Bridges, sponsor, outlines the events of Senior Week in May, the home room presidents attentively listen during one of their meetings. There are committees for the dinner dance, vespers, commencement speaker, the farewell senior assembly, and the senior picnic.

Students from Mr. John Bulman's first hour physics class overflow room 101, signing their pictures, chatting with friends, and seeing the senior panels of the 1960 'Tom Tom' for the first time. After carefully practicing his signature, Jerry Hill prepares to sign his name under his picture.

Senior twins, Pat and Walter Brown, stand in line to receive their scores on the American College test, which was used for the first time this year. Many students can be proud of the results, but others belatedly realize they must study more if they want to do well on such examinations.

Class of 1961 Completes Year of Successful Activities

Miss Bernice Tomlinson, junior class sponsor, checks the agenda for a class assembly to see that the information given in the program may prove beneficial and informative to students.

Nominating attendants to the football queen began the school year for Central's "middle-men." The three lovelies representing their class were Janet Earlougher, Beverly Hanson, and Pat Wilson. At the games keeping school spirit high, the junior cheerleaders—Jonelle English, Ann Wait, Bob Wanders, and Bert McElroy—went all out as pace-setters. Glenn Sharp, president; Janet Earlougher, vice-president; Marten Langworthy, secretary; and Suzanne Hendrix, treasurer; proved to be the mainstay of the class as its officers.

In November the juniors presented The Curious Savage, for which total ticket sales were a record-breaking 3,728. Soon came the grueling Iowa tests, and finally the excitement of ordering senior rings.

Glenn Sharp, president; Janet Earlougher, vice-president; Marten Langworthy, secretary; and Suzanne Hendrix, treasurer; serve the Class of '61 with the enthusiasm, loyalty, and dignity their high offices demand.

Miss Gertrude Rector, counselor, assists juniors in solving academic problems, in planning schedules for students, and in making information on colleges available.

Having met the requirements and personal qualifications of the American Field Service program, Jeannie Kock, Janet Earlougher, Dick Williamson, Sue Clark, and Ann Ringland disclose to one another their personal desires about which country they would prefer to visit if chosen AFS representative from Central. The AFS by giving teenagers the opportunity to live with families in a foreign land accomplish their purpose—to increase understanding and friendship among the peoples of the world. In being a "son" or "daughter" of these families, they have the opportunity to learn the way of life and also to teach the foreign family and friends about the United States. If everyone could know a student from another land prejudice would become a thing of the past.

Mrs. Sydney Powell, counselor, gives much time and thought to juniors, helping them prepare for college, locate work, or find the answers to problems which often arise.

Mrs. Paula Gallier, attendance clerk, goes about her daily work with a smile as she helps the junior absentees by taking excuses, issuing passes to leave school, and checking names of those who have failed to come to the office to pick up absence permits.

Discussing dating, members from a P.D. panel are Sidne Hurst, Jay Carrens, Pat Wilson, George Fearon, Charlene Carter, Jimmy Vaught, Carolyn Looper, and Leonard Collins.

Dancing and enjoying the fun and frolic of an all school mixer after a victorious football game, Ann Wait and Bob Wandres take advantage of the music

Before each football game Nancy Newton, along with many other Red Feathers, can be seen trying to get everyone, including Coach Elhers, to buy pom poms.

Youngest Class Chalks Up Bright Year of New Activities

Peace and quiet are seldom in the busy life of Miss Betty Dobbs, sponsor, who helps in making the sophomore year a big event in the minds of all the various students that come to Central.

The sophomore class under the direction and guidance of teachers, counselors, and sponsor was a very active and studious group.

Keeping the '62 class in order were Wanda Nightingale, president; Jim Seabolt, vice-president; Toni Howard, secretary; and Marilyn Johnson, treasurer, while the cheerleaders, Ray Hunt, Linda Newton, Danny Dill, and Martha Barhydt kept it jumping at the pep rallies and games.

Representing them in attendance to the queen were Martha Barhydt, Pam Quisenberry, and Carol Armstrong.

The sophomore play, Meet Me in St. Louis, under the direction of Mrs. Paula Whitson was a rollicking comedy and a huge success.

Class officers are Wanda Nightingale, president, Jim Seabolt, vice-president; Toni Howard, secretary; and Marilyn Johnson, treasurer.

Work or fun, Mrs. Lorna Stenger does her best to help the sophomores with all the problems and difficulties they encounter during their first year at Central High.

English books! Science books! Math books! History books! Big books and little books! Old books and new books! Is there never an end to the stacks of books that enter into the lives of in-coming sophomores on their climb up the stairway of knowledge? Amid a great mound of publications which will come into her life, Judy Capps contemplates upon what she must accomplish on the way to her senior year and wonders if her head can carry all the learning. Furthermore Judy, who works with her fellow classmates to boost extra curricular activities, tries to take advantage of all that Central has to offer toward a comprehensive education. The stairway to a diploma is beckoning to her.

Performing her duties as sophomore counselor, Mrs. Mary Louise Simms listens and talks to sophomores about their problems, helping them plan towards their future.

At her desk early every school morning taking excuses, checking files, and writing permits for students who were absent sits Mrs. Mildred Lee, sophomore attendance clerk, who works at her tedious job with a big smile and a nice word for all.

Sophomores

At Owen Park in October, "fun for all, and all for fun," the motto of the sophomore class cook-out, Louise Duncan and Alvie Moore enjoy hot dogs, doughnuts, and pepsis.

After derailing the trolley car by means of a stuffed dummy, Agnes (Ruth Ann King) and Tootie (Kathy Shearer) try explaining the situation to their parents (John Redman and Linda Floyd) to help calm the angry conductor (Larry Grindstaff), while the others of the Smith family, Esther (Martha Barhydt), Rose (Pam Quisenberry), and Lon (Phil Sheridan) await the results.

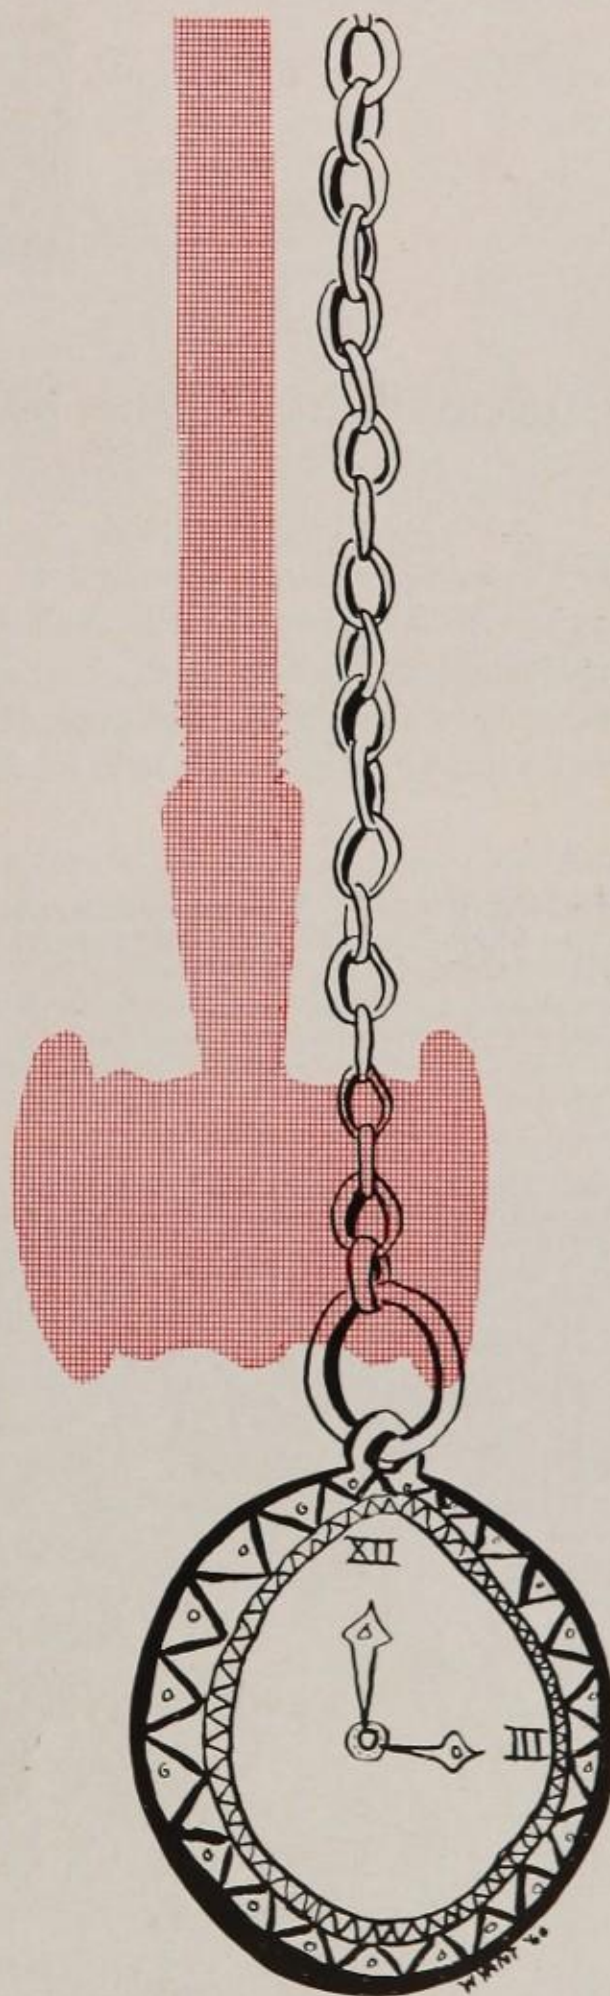

Commotion is quickly aroused as Tootie (Kathy Shearer) proceeds to bite the leg of her father's boss (Jim Savage) in the hope of making him believe their father is not reliable enough to take over management of the New York office. Mr. and Mrs. Smith (John Redman and Linda Floyd) rush to the rescue of their boss.

ORGANIZATIONS

Industriously working through many cartons to be sent to underprivileged children abroad, Junior Red Cross members give the boxes a screening for appropriate items.

On their way to the convention of the Southern Association of Student Councils in Corpus Christi, Texas, in October, Bob Stubblefield, Roberta Ironside, Carolyn Clark, Miss Faye Laird, and Ayse Ercetin pause to let Janet Earlougher snap this picture before one of the cactus fence posts which surround the King Ranch, largest in Texas.

Student Governing Body Practices Democratic Principles

In order for students to apply the principles of democracy and self-government that they learned in the classroom, the Student Council maintained its position as the highest student authority in the school. Meetings of the home room representatives were held on alternating

Thursday mornings; however, the numerous called meetings were indicative of the council's increasing scope of activities.

During third hour daily the council's cabinet met with Miss Faye Laird, their sponsor, to execute the many details of council business. These included everything from revising the handbook, Spirit of Central, to parading the halls in sandwich-board advertisements! Nine actively functioning Student Council committees worked throughout the year in their individual fields.

Right away the "Hello Central" committee, headed by Janet Earlougher and Ann Ringland, set about the task of putting out the school directory; and Roberta Ironside's social committee sponsored the mixer after the Rogers football game. Throughout the year the sales committee, with Carolyn Clark as chairman, sold calendars, book covers, and other items to students. The spotlight committee, headed by Martha Hamaker, honored a sophomore or junior every week for outstanding service and scholastic achievement.

Dave Campbell, president, repeats the oath of office with Richard Watson and Kelly Raynolds, Interschool Council representatives; Roberta Ironside, corresponding secretary; Ros Pollack, Interschool Council secretary; Bob Stubblefield, vice-president; Ayse Ercetin, A.F.S. foreign exchange student; Ann Ringland, Interschool Council representative; Martha Hamaker, recording secretary; Janet Earlougher, parliamentarian; and Carolyn Clark, treasurer.

As Carolyn Clark pleads to the Student Council the need of a home for next year's A.F.S. exchange student, Dave Campbell conducts the meeting and Roberta Ironside records minutes. Carolyn, who is sharing her home with Ayse Ercetin, relates the benefits of such an experience.

Council Sponsors Teachers' Revue and Assembly Program

Interschool council members Ann Ringland, Richard Watson, Kelly Reynolds, and Rosalind Pollack resort to a "spring housecleaning spree" as they polish trophies.

Of course the chief honor for seniors was that of being elected Boy or Girl-of-the-Month by the council members.

"Faculty Frolics," the unforgettable teachers' talent revue to help finance next year's foreign exchange student, was the product of Ros Pollack's AFS committee.

The Student Council assembly early in October explained the organization's functions and purposes and the meanings of the school symbols. Three of Central's ten delegates to the White House Conference on Youth in Oklahoma City were "Councilniks"—Richard Watson, Ann Ringland, and Ros Pollack.

Near the holidays the council again operated the annual Christmas post office under the direction of Nancy Barnes and Tom Duckworth, and four members attended the State Convention at Edison High School. All council members went to the City Convention held at TU in February. As always the Student Council took charge of instructing students on the involved procedure of Daze ticket sales. Toward spring the council promoted the PTA "Code of Student Behavior."

Advertising Board Keeps Centralites Well Informed

Members of the Advertising Board worked before and after school to assure students of information on school activities.

One of the helpful devices for advertising was the electric sign in the main corridor. Keeping the news on the sign up to date was a weekly job of the board members.

Colorful posters were made with the help of the art and speech departments and were placed in the halls to advertise the speech arts plays and the Opera Club production, Oklahoma. The board was also in charge of promoting the distribution and sale of tickets for these performances. Talented members wrote clever advertising jingles for the daily bulletins.

Officers were Pat Harrold, president; Cathy Dalton, vice-president; Sandy Kaiser, secretary; and Jerrilee Ming, treasurer.

The 35 industrious members met every other Tuesday before school in room 417 with Mrs. Laura Leitzsey, their sponsor.

Performing one of many Advertising Board duties, Pat Harrold with able assistance from Bob Baker makes sure that the poster which announces High Ground sits straight.

Camarata Members Usher at Many School Functions

Checking over the records for Camarata, Susie Smith, Rosalind Pollack, Jayne Ann Mobley, and Georgann Behrenfeld realize how important attendance is for a large organization that desires to give helpful service to the school.

Camarata members ushered at the speech art and class plays, the musical comedy, and the assemblies. Other school functions at which they assisted were P.T.A. reception for teachers and Back-to-School Night. The girls in their dark skirts and white blouses were helpful in guiding parents during these two occasions.

Through the ingenuity of the officers of the club — Jayne Ann Mobley, president; Georgann Behrenfeld, vice-president; Leni Lorenz, secretary; and Susie Smith, treasurer — a dance with the members of the Key Club was held at the home of Rosalind Pollack. The sponsors, Mrs. Wincel Hurt and Mrs. Thelma Berggren, chaperoned.

Another social function at the home of Jayne Ann Mobley was the spring tea. This event, held every year, was mainly for the purpose of meeting the new members and officers before next year.

Key Club Extends Services to School and Community

Taking tickets for all performances of Central's stage productions was a task of the members of Key Club, sponsored by Kiwanis, a civic organization.

Other services they performed throughout the year were presenting the talent show for the Children's Medical Center; being in charge of the Lenten chapel service, which all students were invited to attend; and distributing posters for the Tulsa Opera Company and for Easter seals.

As a money-making project for the year the members of Key Club sold small plastic Christmas trees, which were frequently seen in class rooms before the holiday season.

On a February night one of the most enjoyable events was the dance held with the Camarata Club.

Leaders for this active service club were Mike Welch, president; Howard West, vice-president; George Paru, recording secretary; Joe Brainard, corresponding secretary; and Bob Baker, treasurer. The faculty sponsors were Mr. Jack Orme and Mr. James Mitchell.

Bob Baker and Howard West, treasurer and vice-president, discuss the banner of Key Club and the events for the coming year.

Tom Tom Calls for Co-operation and Originality

Examining last year's Tom Tom, Karen West, secretary; Dolores Wilkinson, editor; Olivia Bland, assistant editor; get some idea of the work that lies ahead of the staff in putting out a book to equal previous editions.

The 1960 Tom Tom editorial staff under the guidance of Miss Ruth Holton, worked before school, on Saturdays, and during their regular class time to meet the deadlines. Responsible for chief duties were Dolores Wilkinson, editor; Nancy Wolf and Olivia Bland, assistant editors; Barbara Baum, business manager; and Larry West, photographer.

The staff members found that editing a yearbook demanded co-operation and original thinking. Among their duties were scheduling pictures, assisting the photographer, and writing stories and cutlines.

All efforts were rewarded when the 1960 Tom Tom was printed, bound, and returned. Each member of the staff saw his work as an important part of the annual. Then with great pride and happiness the yearbook was presented to the students in the annual Tom Tom assembly.

Art Staff Adds Beauty and Continuity to Yearbook

The industrious Tom Tom art staff used its talents to make the yearbook appealing to its readers. The group was made up of 13 seniors who were selected last spring because of their abilities in the field of art and their maintenance of good grades. Having worked diligently at the first of the year, the staff under the supervision of Mrs. Esther Clark had its material finished in time to meet the deadline.

Most of the members submitted designs for the cover and end sheet, which were judged by the Tom Tom editorial and art staffs and the Tom Tom Board, a faculty group. Keeping in mind the theme, "Central Standard Time," the committee chose Joe Brainard's cover entry and Elaine Warren's end sheet design as the most appropriate.

Early in the year the art class made a trip to Southwestern Engraving Company to see how the art work would be reproduced. This experience and similar ones provided a good foundation for future careers in commercial art.

After completing the drawings for the yearbook, pupils of this class pursued study on individual problems and prepared portfolios for scholarship competition. Some of them worked on three-dimensional problems in wood, metal, and clay.

Artist Joe Brainard gives the finishing touches to the first rough sketch of the 1960 Tom Tom cover. Lynn Yelton provides her critical opinion of the masterpiece.

Publishing 'School Life' Demands Talent and Toil

Counting the papers for distribution marks the culmination of one week's work for the "School Life" staff. As Barbara Bumgarner and Howard West proudly perform the task, Diane Finn searches the edition for Central news.

The preparation of a newspaper demands talent, training, and long hours of toil. The staff of 13 members, who were sponsored by Miss Anna K. Crotchett, selected Lynn Gibson, editor; Howard West, business manager; and Barbara Bumgarner, Beverly Moss and Shirley White, assistant editors.

As each week began, reporters assembled pictures and news of recent school events. Literary art was employed to compile interesting, informative articles, features, and editorials, titled by eye-catching headlines.

The copy was sent to the co-ordinator of the seven school publication and returned as a finished newspaper, ready for distribution by home rooms to all budget holders.

The time and efforts of the Central School Life staff were rewarded with numerous national ratings, recognition by Freedom's Foundation, and the appreciation of every student.

Red Cross Council Provides for Needy Children

The purpose of the Red Cross Council was to help provide for the less fortunate through elected representatives from each homeroom.

The annual membership drive brought over six hundred dollars, according to Miss Jewell Ramsey, sponsor. This money was sent to the downtown office to be used for ordering supplies; publishing the magazine, Through the Key Hole, alternately among the schools; and Red Cross boxes for the Central council. After these boxes were distributed to home rooms, students were asked to fill them with needed supplies for underprivileged children.

Making others happy by giving talent programs at the Veteran's Hospital in Vinita was a reward not only to the sick but to the council participants.

Leading the group was Jo Crider, president; Dennis Looper, vice-president; Suzanne Hendrix, treasurer; and Kitty Holloway, secretary.

Central's edition of the Junior Red Cross magazine, Through the Key Hole, receives final assembling touches as Betty Hastings checks the issue which Jo Crider staples.

Book Guild Fosters Student Appreciation for Books

The purpose of the Central Book Guild was to discuss and review books, original poems, essays, and other types of compositions. The club, which met on Thursday mornings, had as its sponsor Miss Helen Hagler, the librarian. Membership was open to any sophomore, junior, or senior who enjoyed a good book. If they were asked, the members presented their reviews to English classes or to any other interested groups.

The officers for the 1959-1960 school year were Delores Chandler, president; Virginia Wienecke, vice-president; Melisande Kopp, secretary; and Lloyd White, historian.

Library Assistants Acquire Skills in Diversity of Jobs

Library assistants had jobs of great diversity. Filling reference requests for classes, checking out books, typing catalogue cards and book orders, writing overdue notices, mending and reshelving books took much of their time. The aid given to Miss Helen Hagler, librarian, and Mrs. Thelma Myer, library assistant, and to the many book users brought rewarding skills to be used in all their future academic endeavors.

Students Emphasize Art of Good Speaking in Bureau

Speakers' Bureau presented outside experienced speakers for entertainment and example in meetings this year. Radio, television, and after-dinner speeches were some of the types given. Following these demonstrations, bureau members presented original speeches in the same areas.

Members were encouraged to enter all speech contests. Several placed in school and city contests.

The group participated in the annual assembly, entitled Calendar Carousel. In this program the twelve months of the year were portrayed in skits. Also included were several so called well-known national holidays, such as "Be Kind to Turkey Week" and "Laugh Week."

Under the direction of Mrs. Iona Ballew Freeman and with the help of the able officers—Bob Stubblefield, president; Nancy Newton, vice-president; Marilyn Kluck, recording secretary; Bette Whitelock, corresponding secretary; and Sally Ford, treasurer—the bureau was one of the most active organizations in school.

Gaily skipping around the bright May-pole is Grant Brown, who has just been chosen Queen of May in Speakers' Bureau assembly, "Calendar Carousel." Assisting the queen are Dave Jackson, Bill Horney, Bob Stubblefield, V. C. Bounds, Wayne Irsch.

Thespians Multiply Abilities Through Stage Shows

Only male member of the cabinet, Dave Jackson, president, gets crowned with a Thespian beanie by Rebecca Sauerwein, vice president; Susan Goeppinger, scribe; Linda Hamm, historian; and Monnett Brock, secretary.

"Act well your part; there all the honor lies" was the motto of The National Thespian Society Troupe 817. Meeting every other week on Monday and Tuesday, Thespians under the guidance of Mrs. Iona Ballew Freeman accomplished much toward promoting achievement in dramatic fields. One of the troupe's major projects was an assembly dramatizing the seven areas of creative arts. The group also performed short plays like The Valiant and Gloria Murdi before school.

This hard working group enjoyed many parties, including a festive tea during the Christmas holidays to which everyone who has ever been a member of Troupe 817 was given an invitation.

The officers were Dave Jackson, president; Becky Sauerwein, vice-president; Monnett Brock, secretary; Diane Erbert, treasurer; and Susan Goeppinger, scribe.

Examples of the most primitive musical instruments—the lyre, the drum, and the pipe—played by David Rhodes, Ruth Ann King, and Sue Clark, combine with their modern-day counterparts—the trombone, the bongos, the trumpet, and the piano—played by Dick Williamson, Doug Smith, Paul Kimball, and Bette Whitelock to produce some unusual music in the Thespian assembly.

Demonstrating the graceful movements of one of the seven arts, ballet, Sharon Willis performs in the yearly assembly of the National Thespian Society.

As one of their annual money making projects of the year, enthusiastic members of Thespians—Melisande Kopp, Sharon Willis, Becky Sauerwein, and Bob Shatwell — participate in the one act play, "Gloria Mundy," presented before school.

Projection Club Aids Student Knowledge with Films

Before a monthly general faculty meeting when illustrative material about second semester advanced enrollment is to be flashed upon a screen in the south auditorium, David Hardy, Tommy Redman, and Joe Wallace set up an opaque projector.

A few of the different tasks of Projection Club were operating various types of projectors, showing slides in assemblies, and caring for the visual aid equipment.

At their meetings, which were held on Thursday mornings, the projectionists, under the direction of Mr. Albert Martin, sponsor, discussed various problems they encountered in running films.

Besides gaining knowledge of the types of projectors, the club members received one-half credit a semester. Once again report cards were given, after a period of several years when this practice of receiving grades had been discontinued.

The club sometimes had outside activities in the form of parties or cookouts. At these festivities methods of operation and care of projectors were discussed.

Ronnie Vandever was president of Projection Club, and David Hardy was secretary.

Stagecraft Creates Glamorous, Fantastic Scenery

Out of the painted muslin, the two by four's, and the various colored lights, the stagecraft organization created scenery which ranged anywhere from an ivy-covered college in England to a small cornfield in Oklahoma. Mr. Albert Martin, director, supervised the group; Ira Russell served as president; and Norma Tandy as secretary.

One of the most notable events of the year's activities was the assembly program presented by the Stagecraft Club. During the assembly the audience was introduced to some of the language, the terms, and the nicknames of the different machines and other items used behind stage to make a play complete with scenery, lighting, and sound effects.

Both boys and girls worked long hours after school making ready the stage for plays and all other productions for which the stage was used. Of these the hardest and longest assignment was the 1960 Cosmorama Daze. Each of the stagecraft crew, plus interested extras, worked on this production.

Working on scenery for the junior class play, "The Curious Savage," Roberta Burdette, Anne Kepler, Lonnie Gosnell, Shan Rutherford, and Glen Coons finish a flat.

Trade and Industrial Workers Learn and Earn on Job

With shirt sleeves rolled up Jimmie Collins, who is a senior member of the diversified occupations program, prepares to operate a Kluge job press at the Marvin Printing Company, where he is employed each afternoon on a part-time basis.

Promoting interest in trades in Tulsa and knowledge of them, encouraging each boy to have respect for his vocation, and awakening a desire to do better work were purposes of the Trade and Industrial Club.

The members attended school four hours each day. Three hours were spent attending regularly scheduled classes to meet the needed requirements for graduation. One hour was used in study relating to their jobs. The remainder of the day they left school to work on jobs in their chosen fields.

Mr. Richard Kisner, sponsor, opened his home for the initiation ceremony during the first week in October. The Christmas party and the picnic at Mohawk Park in May proved to be at the top of the list of many social activities.

Officers were John Taylor, president; Jim Hamblin, vice-president; Mike Gordon, secretary-treasurer; Wayne Bigby, sergeant-at-arms; and Fred Borden, reporter.

D. E. Members Get Training in Merchandising Fields

Distributive Education was a vocational class composed of people who went to school a half day and worked a half day. Those people received special training in fields of merchandise and selling, which they desired to enter after high school.

To aid these students in choosing their fields of business were guest speakers, field trips, initiations, breakfast for employers, merchandise manuals, many types of vocational notebooks, and films on different vocations which visualized the advantages and disadvantages of jobs pictured. In this way D.E. students were not specialized in one certain form of business vocations.

The officers of Distributive Education were Don Wheeler, president; Leroy Corbett, vice-president; Carol Henderson, recording secretary; Judy Westrope, correspondence secretary; Colene Squyres, parliamentarian; Russell Cox, chaplain; Ruth Ann Adams, treasurer; and Joan Broom, editor of the D.E. newspaper.

Don Wheeler receives from Mr. Bill Rayson, secretary manager of the Tulsa Retail Association, his airplane ticket to New York, where Don will be the delegate of D.E.

Tulsa Historical Society Profits by City Visitations

The Tulsa Historical Society was an active organization composed of seniors enrolled in the four community history classes. This course was planned to make alive the history of Tulsa and of Oklahoma, past and present.

In other years the society has had many activities such as the erection of an informational marker at Mohawk Park. Members had an opportunity to meet with real life situations, not only by reading and discussion in the classroom, but also by actual contact with the resources of the community through research, interview, visitation, and surveys. These projects were carried on by individuals, classes, or committees. After the topics were selected, the procedure and the type of research were based on interests of students.

This year the project chosen was the making of a brochure of all the historical Tulsa markers. The organization enjoyed taking tours through the Tulsa museums and seeing the historical markers. These trips for research gave a keener knowledge of the community, and the surrounding territory.

During the school year the Tulsa Historical Society group takes many field trips around Tulsa to obtain more information and gain a better knowledge of the community. Future Homemakers Center Interest Around Family

The 1960 members of Future Homemakers of America began their work of fostering the development of creative leadership in home and community life, one of F.H.A. purposes, by the formal installation of officers and initiation of new members.

Officers installed were Barbara Grebing, president; Sandy Crawford, vice-president; Ronna Mae Clark, secretary; Suzanne Lee, treasurer; Kay Fraley, historian. Mrs. Jessie Diffie sponsored the group.

Other purposes of the club, to provide wholesome individual and group recreation and to further interest in home economics, were attained by varied activities. Guest speakers, a cosmetologist and a hair stylist, presented the keys to good grooming. Attendance to the sub-district rally at Union Consolidated resulted in the discussion of group projects and suggestions for a more progressive F.H.A.

Practicing for the first big event of the year, the formal installation of F.H.A. officers, Barbara Grebing, observed by Suzanne Lee and Sandy Crawford, lights her candle from the center one, representing the "Light of Home Economics."

Future Teachers Prepare to Train Youth of Tomorrow

In preparation for careers in teaching students enrolled in the George Pearson Future Teachers of America engaged in many activities. The members worked in the library, gaining much valuable experience. They also developed a teacher-aid program to assist in the clerical duties of instructors.

Taking a field trip to Riverview School on February 2, the group learned firsthand information about elementary and special education. Those who attended the F.T.A. Day at Tulsa University discussed with other clubs their mutual problems.

The high point of the year was the trip to the state convention at Alva. Under the sponsorship of Mrs. Barbara Schwabe the club enjoyed an installation dinner and pot luck supper, along with holiday parties. At programs talks by teachers who are specialists in their fields and a panel of foreign exchange students were interesting and inspirational.

F.T.A. had a constructive year under the leadership of Mary Robinson, president; Hildra Landers, vice-president; Sue Clark, recording secretary; Marilyn Dunn, corresponding secretary; JoAnn Westgate, treasurer; Eleanor Borland, historian; and Glenda McDonald, librarian.

One of the many guest speakers scheduled to talk to club members, Dr. Paul Sheckelford, a skin specialist, is showing Mr. Aubrey Baer, sponsor, and Carol Simmons, president, a model of the head about which he tells them a few interesting facts.

Club Strives to Promote Interest in Medical Profession

The purpose of Medico Club was to help inspire and promote an interest in the medical profession by hearing distinguished speakers, making trips, and viewing films. The year proved to be one of entertainment and learning for every member.

In September members were given an opportunity to buy a club pin. The symbol on the pin is the caduceus, the emblem used by all branches of the medical profession.

The first trip taken was in early October, when the group visited the Medical Research Foundation in Oklahoma City. Dr. Averill Stowell, a neurosurgeon, spoke to the group on January 26. Scheduled to speak on February 2 was Dr. Berget H. Blacksom, urologist. Other guests were Dr. Robert H. Knarr and Dr. Paul Sheckelford.

on February 9, "The First Major Test of Penicillin," provided an interesting and entertaining way to find out about the progress that has recently been made in the field of medicine. Something a little more on the light side was a Christmas party at the president's house in December.

Presiding over the meetings was Carol Lynn Simmons, president. Other cabinet members were Bob Martinez, vice-president; Mary Holloway, treasurer; Luann Riley, recording secretary; and Carol Howard, social secretary. Mr. Aubrey Baer, senior counselor and biology teacher, was the club sponsor.

“Les Artists” Seek Creativity, Cultural Enrichment

Miss Gertrude Rector explains the psychological significance of her artistic masterpiece, “Valley of Decision,” on display at the Teachers’ Art Exhibit, to curiously observant Art Club officers, Joan Brix and Joe Brainard.

After a successful membership drive the Art Club began its activities for the year with 35 enthusiastic members. Directing their projects toward improved style and finer sensitivity to the things around them, the group’s officers—Joe Brainard, president; Joan Brix, vice-president Elaine Warren, secretary; and Ann Kepler, treasurer—along with its sponsor, Mrs. Esther Clark, planned enriching programs for the Monday afternoon meetings. These included talks by a number of eminent local artists.

The club went on several field trips, including a tour of Philbrook Art Museum. But the highlight of the year’s endeavors was the Teacher’s Art Exhibit, held before school on November 12. Revealing the artistic forte of many of Central’s faculty members, the show was planned to replenish the Art Club treasury and to finance the party that climaxed a creative year!

Advanced Class Furthers Scientific Knowledge

Students who have shown high aptitudes in previous science courses made up the advanced physical science class, which met fifth hour four days a week under the instruction of Mr. George Hall.

The fifteen boys were given every chance to further their scientific knowledge and skill. At the end of the third quarter each boy was required to turn in an original research paper based on results obtained in a high school science research project. This year's projects included such things as stress in metals, the pH of non-neutral solutions, and detection and measurement of thermo-electric currents.

For the first time the budding scientists had a required regular period in which they were able to complete the full laboratory program, which had been optional for students in the past six years that the class has existed. In the laboratory the boys studied the analysis of known and unknown solutions of the metallic cations.

Taking advantage of advanced physical science program, which demands that all pupils participate in laboratory experiments, Roy DeVault, Howard West, and Grant Brown, analyze an unknown solution.

Mr. Clay Roberts, one of the national wrestling coaches of America, talks to Terry White after his informative speech at an International Club meeting. Mr. Roberts, who spent some time in Russia last summer, points out on the map some of the places of interest which he visited, while Terry plies him with questions about Communism, the common person's outlook on life and the government, the school system and its effectiveness, and living conditions.

International Club Searches Knowledge of World

The main object of the International Club was to establish a greater knowledge of world affairs. To accomplish this aim the club had many entertaining guest speakers who gave their viewpoint on situations in foreign countries. Slides and panels were also informative.

Among the guest were Mr. Clay Roberts, national wrestling coach, discussing Russia; Bill Shouten, reviewing his life in Holland; Esben Schake from Edison, telling about the people of Denmark; Carolyn Clark, describing her visit to Turkey; and Ellen Epstein, speaking on her travels in Egypt, Israel, France, and the United States.

Four Central seniors—Susie Smith, Ron Padgett, Suzanne Savage, and Susan Brooks—told about the experiences they had at school in Mexico last summer.

season. The club also had fun during the year. A Christmas party was given at the home of Leslie Segner so that the members could become better acquainted. In the spring they ate dinner at the Ricsha, a restaurant featuring Cantonese cuisine. For two years the club has eaten where foreign food is served.

President Leslie Segner had efficient support from the rest of the cabinet—Mary Emery, vice-president; Bill Shouten, treasurer; Joan Brix, secretary; Bob Pishel, parliamentarian; and Judy Durkee, social chairman. The sponsor was Miss Margery Pike, history and social studies teacher.

International Club cabinet has the difficult task of choosing topics and speakers for weekly meetings. Mary Emery shows a booklet dealing with foreign correspondents to Miss Margery Pike. Other cabinet members—Joan Brix, Bill Shouten, Bob Pishel, and Leslie Segner—study the pamphlet to decide if it contains pertinent, usable material.

Rifle Club Aims Toward Improved Marksmanship

Three members of Rifle Club work in the Girls' South Gym to improve their shooting ability. Allen Read aims at the target from the sitting position; Vance Massey shoots from the kneeling stance; and Bill Zingg takes the off-hand position.

Echoing from the girls' south gym every Tuesday afternoon from 3:35 to 5:15 came the sounds from the Rifle Club members as they practiced to improve their marksmanship skills. Under the sponsorship of Mr. Robert Jankovitz and the leadership of Bill Zingg, president, and Allen Reed, vice-president, the boys gained the experience necessary for proper handling of firearms and for following safety instructions completely.

Throughout the year the members competed for medals which ranged from pro-marksman to distinguished riflemen. The boys earned these medals given by the National Rifle Association through improved target scores. Officers who perform their duties faithfully and excellently and who meet all other qualifications compete for an athletic T-award at the end of the year.

By the end of the year the boys had become proficient in the art of marksmanship while they were enjoying a year of companionship with other riflemen.

Chess Club Outplays Opponents to Win City Trophy

Chess Club, the thinking man's organization, won every game it played with other Tulsa high schools, making Central the city chess champion.

During the year the club had two methods of rating the members. In previous years the group had kept a board with the names of members attached with rubber bands, making them easy to move. When a player further down on the board defeated a higher man, their names were exchanged. If the higher man won, they both kept their positions. This method had some disadvantages which the point system, voted on early in February, dispelled.

The new method suggested by Mr. Bob Schisler, sponsor, gave each player 50 points for winning a game. The per cent of the difference in the player's points was added if the lower man won and subtracted if the higher man was victorious. In both systems the top five men played in the inter-scholastic tournaments where competition was keen.

Bob Danford presided over the meetings. The vice-president was Richard Kirkland. Keeping the minutes was Richard Christie. Franklin Campbell, as treasurer, collected the dues.

Hovering over the chessboard, Franklin Campbell and Bob Danford intently watch which one of the 32 pieces will be moved either by Roy DeVault or by Robert Kirk.

Girls' Chorus Anticipates Future in Advanced Work

During the lunch hour on Thursdays and Fridays chorus members enjoy loitering in the music room to sing. Grouped around Kathy Hatch, who is at the piano, Ruth Ann King and Linda McSpadden get pleasure from the rhythm of a gay tune.

The girls of the fourth hour chorus under the direction of Mr. Rex Teague learned that singing in a group not only was different from what they had expected, but was a hard, difficult job with as much concentration required as in any academic course. However they agreed that the experience was rewarding when they participated in general assemblies and other special programs.

Realizing the fact that even the weather could effect the quality of amateur singing groups inspired the fourth hour to strive for perfection in everyday practice and also in the memorization of music, which was considered a very important part of work for any chorus.

The class officers—Kathy Hatch, president; Ruth Ann King, vice-president; Linda McSpadden, secretary; and Mary Cooper, treasurer—helped organize activities.

Fifth Hour Chorus Endeavors to Learn Music Better

Preparing for the time when they will be eligible for membership in either Opera Club or A Capella Choir, the beginning singers of the fifth hour girls' chorus learned the basic skills of vocal music.

A brief introduction to theory and harmony, extensive practice in note reading each time a new song was initiated in the class, and valuable lessons in the proper pronunciation of their vowels resulted in development of their musical talents.

The highlight of the year's activities for the fourth and fifth hour choruses was the trip to Stillwater. There they entertained the college students and residents of the city in the Thanksgiving Music Festival. To add beauty and dignity to the traditional Christmas assembly, they provided a background for The Nativity. But realizing that fun must accompany formal class work, the girls got together to plan and attend several social events.

The efficiency and success of the year is a source of pride for the officers—Jeanette Robinson, president; Sharon Nelson, vice-president; Gretchen Knowland, secretary; and Mr. Rex Teague, director.

Directing attention to a staff drawn on the board in room 426, Jeanette Robinson shows Gretchen Knowland and Sharon Nelson some perplexities of note reading.

Opera Club Succeeds in Presentation of 'Oklahoma'

Opera Club, one of the advanced vocal groups, presented Oklahoma, the well-known musical comedy by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, January 29-30 on the stage in the south auditorium. The cast was trained by Mr. Rex Teague, director, and Mrs. Paula Whitson, speech arts teacher.

Jo Crider as Laurey tried hard to win the affection of Shan Rutherford, who played Curly. The mean hired hand, Jud Fry, was portrayed by Jerry Hobson. Barbara Johnson, who played Aunt Eller, helped Curly in his quest for Laurey's love. Susan Goeppinger as Ado Annie was the girl who couldn't say, "No," when she was wooed by Mike Roark as Will Parker or Jim Devinney, who played the roving peddler, Ali Hakim. In the part of the saucy Gertie Cummings was Katherine Jackson. Ado Annie's father was Bill Mieir.

Besides this big undertaking the members were called upon frequently to make other appearances before school groups and civic organizations. They sang in the Citizenship Day program, The Messiah, the annual assembly, and the spring concert.

Opera Club was a class on the regular school schedule, meeting during the second period in room 426 with Mr. Teague as the teacher. The elected officers were Shan Rutherford, president; Richard Kilgore, vice-president; Jo Crider, secretary; and Marsha Wieman, treasurer.

A Cappella Choir Becomes Unified Vocal Group

A Cappella Choir had a fruitful year of learning and fellowship. Because of the Thanksgiving music festival when many students became ill and others helped where they were needed, the members were drawn quite close together and remained so for the entire year.

The choir staunchly held its place as one of the two advanced choirs of Central. As president, Bill Chissoe managed to collect a dime from each gum-chewing errant, keep the class in order, and presided over the group. Bob Pishel, vice-president and accompanist, devoted much of his time to the activities of the choir.

Sandra Plankett, secretary, kept the class records and roll, and attended to the passes. Mabel Artinger, treasurer, guarded all money transactions. Bette Whitelock, assistant pianist, also helped Judy Rucker who served as robe chairman.

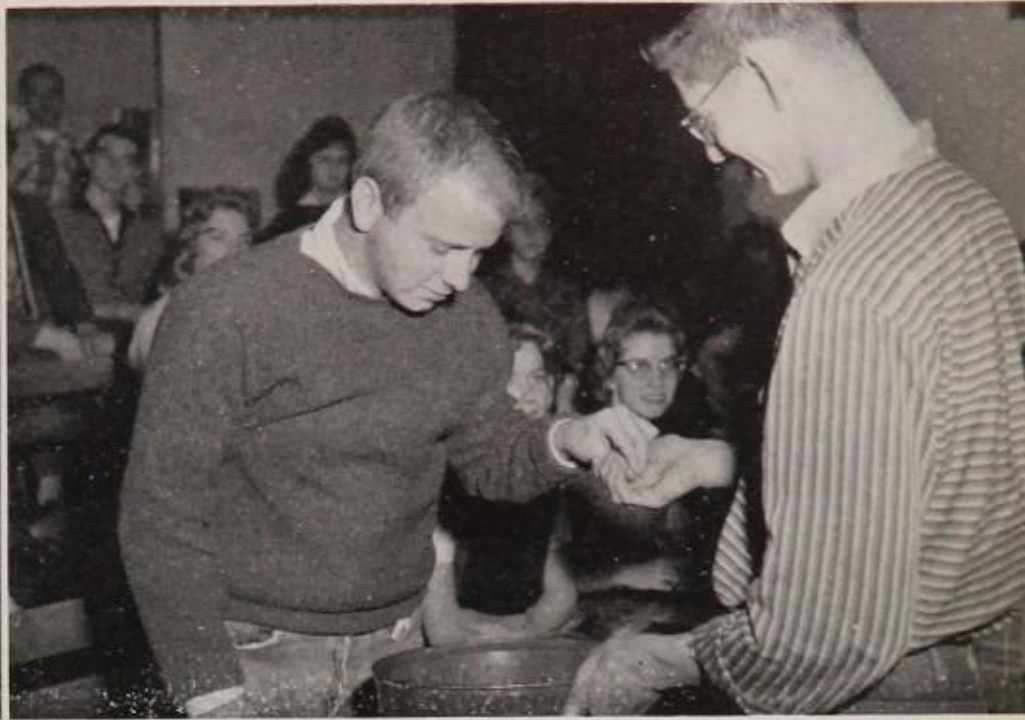

These students who certainly knew how to play together also learned how to work together. When Mr. Rex Teague, director, had to leave the room, the choir learned to continue working under the direction of Frank Gwin. They even had a fan club, consisting of the many students and teachers who pased at the door during their lunch hours to listen.

Mabel Artinger, treasurer; Sandra Plunkett, secretary; Bob Pishel, vice-president and pianist; and Mr. Rex Teague, director, discuss "The Messiah" with Judy Rucker and Bette Whitelock, robe co-chairmen, and Bill Chissoe, president.

Bill Chissoe finds Jimmy Regal chewing gum and collects the usual fine of one dime as Jimmy puts the gum into the wastebasket. A friendly but persistent enforcement of good behavior extends into all of the many activities of the choir.

Sixty-Piece Orchestra Plays for Musical Programs

Another successful year for the orchestra came to a close with their spring concert. The Central orchestra under the direction of Mr. Donald Linde consisted of sixty members. Many of these people were selected to accompany The Messiah. Eight members were in two string quartets which performed at different occasions in Tulsa.

The orchestra's schedule was filled to capacity. The group played a medley of carols at the Christmas assembly. At the junior, senior, and sophomore class plays entertainment was provided during intermission. One of the most important appearances was accompanying the Opera Club's production of the musical comedy, Oklahoma.

The orchestra was called upon many times to give concerts at junior high schools. Along with these concerts the musicians gave their annual general assembly program. In March the organization had the privilege of playing at the Northeast Oklahoma Educational Association meeting.

The Orchestra, along with other Tulsa high school music organizations, formed its own music festival. To receive criticism from experts on April 27, the local groups played before a panel of judges. The Central instrumental students presented "Die Italienerin in Algier" by Rossini and "Symphony No. 5½" by Don Gillis.

The year was filled with hard work, but the musicians found time to enjoy a spring banquet and dance.

"This note is on the up beat," says George Evelyn, who looks over a musical score with David Clark, Don Vickburg, and Charlotte Breedlove. These people are the instrumentalists who hold first chair in different sections of the orchestra.

Music Lovers Gain Enjoyment from Concert Band

One of the prime objectives of the Concert Band was to bring entertainment to the student body. Directing the 86 member organization was Mr. Donald Linde.

The band started in September by rehearsing for half-time shows at football games. The Marching Band consisted primarily of Concert Band members with a few students from the Cadet Band and the Orchestra.

When marching season was over, the Concert Band started serious rehearsals for the coming concerts. The first performance was the Veterans' Day program. The band presented "Portrait of the Land" and accompanied the combined A Cappella Choir and Opera Club in singing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

Following this program the band members prepared their annual concert for the students. The musicians played selections that ranged from the "North Sea Overture" to "Voodance," an exotic jungle number. They were asked to give concerts at both Lowell and Roosevelt Junior High Schools.

The schedule was a full one, but the group reserved room for a little fun at a picnic in Mohawk Park.

Majorettes Keep First Place Tradition in Twirling

Giving their top-hat configuration a quick run-through, these majorettes—Becky Sauerwein, Kay Pendergrass, Jimmie Lou Dyer, Susan Mackey, and Pat Ivy—take a last minute review in preparation for the Bartlesville game.

After attending the music camp at Norman during the summer, the 1960 Majorette Corps kept Central's tradition by once again taking the first place trophy for group twirling in a contest held in Tulsa in July. This competition was the beginning of their energetic activities.

With the football season came many hours of early morning practice at Central Park. The corps added beauty and grace to half-time activities. Twirling to everything from rock 'n roll to waltz, they presented "Puppy Love," precision drill, and twirled fire, all with enthusiasm.

Basketball games and wrestling matches would not have been the same without the group. Assemblies, concerts, and parades all had a place on their schedule.

Becky Sauerwein, as head majorette, led the four seniors, a junior, and a sophomore in formations and baton routines.

Lettermen Earn Money to Buy Warm-Ups for Braves

A boy was eligible for membership in Lettermen's Club if he had lettered in one of the nine sports offered at Central. The duty of the members was to promote sportsmanship and to develop an interest in athletic activities throughout the entire student body.

During the winter season, the club showed films of the Bartlesville, Rogers, Edison, Sapulpa, and Booker T. Washington football games. From the admission fees to these games and from club dues the boys bought football warm-ups as their gift to the athletic department.

Heading the Lettermen's crew were Palmer Koontz, president; Woody Garrett, vice-president; Jim Reniers, secretary; and Raymond Porter, sergeant-at-arms. Mr. Eddie Sutton was the sponsor.

In the spring the Lettermen had a picnic and a banquet, drawing the season to an end in a very enjoyable manner.

Four lettermen—Raymond Porter, Jim Reniers, Woody Garrett, and Palmer Koontz—admire trophies won by students in past.

Athletic Managers Lighten Burdens for Coaches

In a corner of the boys' gym locker room Ralph Engle is wrapping the ankle of Dan Baker, who is relaxing on the table, to explain to Dee Archer and Jarrell Pell one of the many first aid treatments all athletic managers must know.

Boys interested in working around the athletes on varsity teams comprised a group known as Athletic Managers. Coaches in the boys' physical education department chose fellows who wanted to assist in such tasks as checking in and out equipment or taping sprained ankles.

The managers could be found during football season working on the chain gang, helping an injured player from the field, keeping the gear in order, or doing a myriad of other chores. At other times these managers were occupied with duties of the sport then in season, such as timing track runners during practice or getting baseball bats to the diamond and seeing that they were returned.

Their faculty sponsor was Coach Bob Pyle. Instead of the usual one head manager there were four—Ralph Engle, first-aid; Dan Baker, B-squad dry room; Richard Gieger, equipment; and Jarrell Pell, field.

Pep Club Supports Activities with Vim and Vigor

"Yea Red; Yea White; Yea Team; Fight, Fight!" was a familiar cheer heard throughout the halls of Central. Whether it was an approaching football game or wrestling match, a basketball game or a track meet, the Red Feathers strived to spark enthusiasm in the students.

On Friday mornings in the North Auditorium a group of girls in white blouses and red skirts could be found eagerly learning new cheers and enjoying humorous skits by the officers. Contributing to the fun were the sponsors, who participated in the Christmas skit. Miss Betty Dobbs looked just like Frosty the Snowman, while Mrs. Charlotta Felible was dashing as Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer. Mrs. Valdene Sands was a little girl who wanted her "two front teeth"; Miss Margaret Honegger and Mrs. Sharon Cairns were two of Santa's helpers, and Miss Shirley Hughes played Mrs. Santa.

Karen West, Miss Betty Dobbs, Nancy Newton, Sudie Trippet, and Georgann Behrenfeld work on favors for wrestling squad.

Red Feathers Boost Teams with Good Luck Charms

Cheering Braves on to victory during a skit in Red Feather meetings are sponsors—Miss Margaret Honegger, Mrs. Valdene Sands, Miss Betty Dobbs, and Mrs. Sharon Cairns.

The Red Feather cabinet—Nancy Newton, president; Georgann Behrenfeld, vice-president; Karen West, secretary; and Sudie Trippet, treasurer—with the help of pep club members made favors for each boy participating in a sport. They also held two "Victory Vittles" breakfasts in the cafeteria, one honoring those in football and one for those in basketball, swimming, and wrestling.

A New Year's dinner in the home of Nancy Newton honored the cabinet, the cheerleaders, Miss Dobbs, and her assistant advisers—Mrs. Felible, cheerleader sponsor; Miss Hughes, finance adviser; Mrs. Sands, squad leader sponsor; and Miss Honegger and Mrs. Cairns, in charge of squads.

Originality, combined with hard work on the part of the sponsors and the cabinet, made Red Feathers a very "peppy" organization, one which will continue to grow in purpose and service for the benefit of the school they spiritedly boost.

Diane Hissom explains to Red Feathers a cheer learned during cheerleading clinic last summer at Norman. Linda Newton, Gini Wyant, Jo Nelle English, and Martha Barhydt prepare to make a demonstration of one of the new cheers, "Build up the Teepee."

Scalper Cabinet Leads in Support of Sports Events

In regular Friday morning meetings during home room Scalpers promoted support of sports activities.

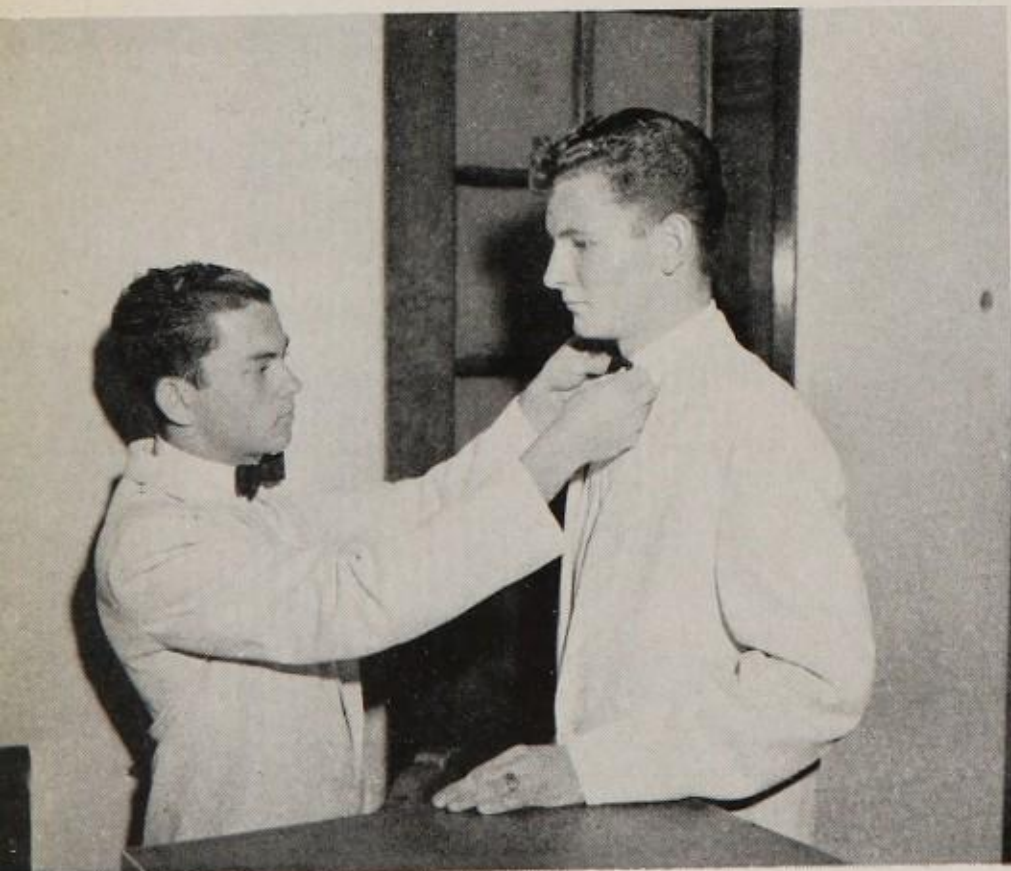

The Scalper cabinet was Bill Horney, president; George Trickel, vice-president; Gary Hunt, secretary-treasurer; and Ralph Engle, student assistant. Mr. Arnold Stock and Mr. Ernest McHugh sponsored the group.

Once a month they joined forces with Red Feathers to honor the athletic teams. The members worked with the girls' pep club in planning the coronation mixer.

Preparing for the 1960 "Cosmorama Daze," Jerry Chamberlain resets and straightens the bow tie of Joe Reeder in the matron's office, which was used as the main headquarters for ushers that were chosen from Scalpers for the Daze.

After having enjoyed the breakfast in honor of the athletes given by the Red Feathers, Don Mullins, Jim Coffey, Jackie Ray, and Richard Riley are all smiles as they dispose of their juice cans and milk cartons before leaving.

Board Controls Pursestrings of Central Organizations

During the year many people at Central may not have been aware of the conscientious efforts of the Board of Directors of Activity Funds, the only organization in the school in which both student and faculty members were on an equal status. The Board of Directors was in charge of allocating the various monies obtained from the sale of budgets, dramatic productions, athletic events, the Daze, and all other sources utilizing the school bank for deposits. This important task was carried out in the morning conferences which Mr. M. M. Black, principal, called to order on the first Monday on or after the tenth day of each month. Besides the six faculty members, the three classes and the Student Council were allowed one member each.

Remember the enjoyable assembly in which Mr. Fred Lowry exhibited his famed whistling proficiency? This, along with others throughout the year, was financed through the work of the Board of Directors. The board also distributed Central's activity funds to the Boys' Athletic Association, Tom Tom, School Life, Student Council, the instrumental and vocal groups, and each class treasury.

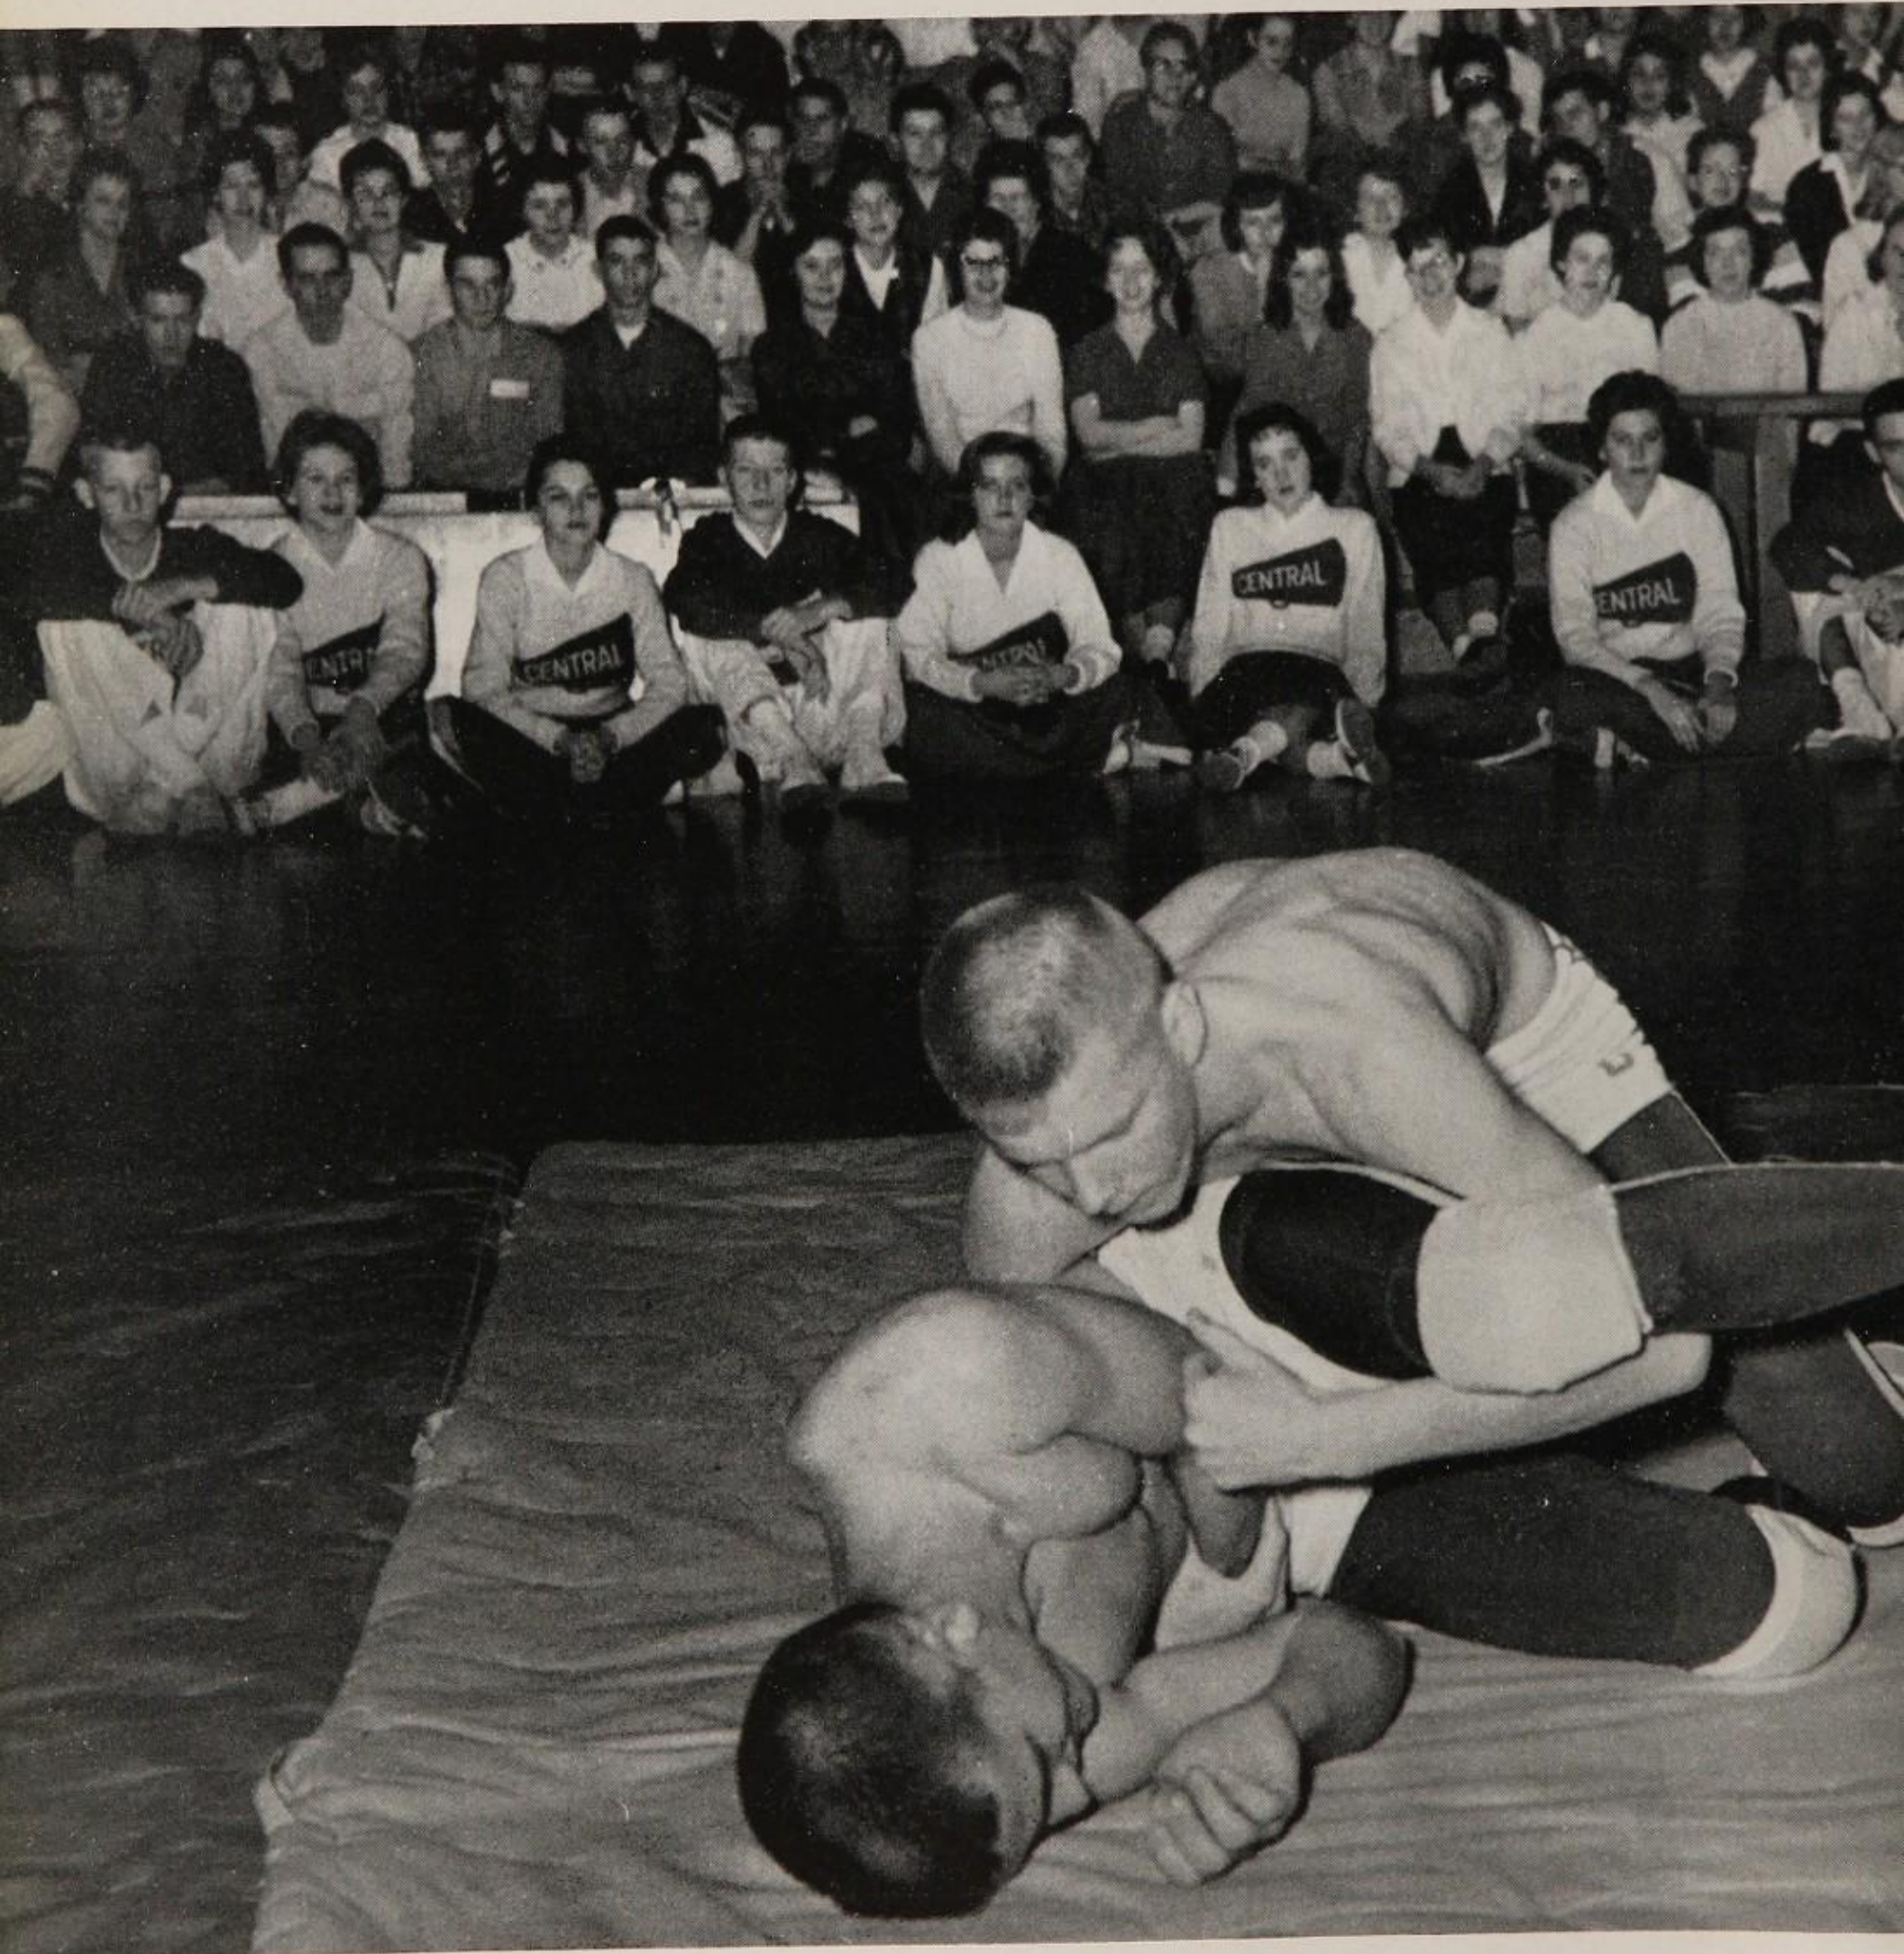

Student board members—Janet Earlougher, Mike Long, and Marilyn Johnson—observe Bill Horney, who takes advantage of an unusual opportunity to "play Mr. Black."

SPORTS

During one of the joint Red Feather-Scalper meetings at which Coach Ned Blass presents the wrestling team, Jeff Nash and John Babb demonstrate positions and holds used.

At the courts, which are six blocks away from school, a junior girls' physical education class watches Diane Ross demonstrate the right way to return tennis balls.

Marilyn Johnson has begun penetrating the defensive line of the opposing hockey team; Carol Cannon, Mary Frederickson, and Kay Baker faithfully prevent this invasion.

Girls Enjoy Opportunities in Physical Education

Assuming a modern dance position, Janice King, Gina Villines, Diane Erbert, and Beverly Hanson, junior girls who take modern dancing for two periods a week, agree that the physical activity offers relaxation and expression of freedom.

Sharon Green works to attain better balance which in turn helps her to practice good posture. Ruth Kennedy is aided by a "hip-fixer" in her exercise. Judy Shaffer, Linda James, and Linda McDonald use the equipment in the individual gym room. Corrective exercises help them to attain better posture.

On a sunny day at the baseball field Marilyn Johnson awaits the arrival of the ball in her catcher's mitt as Carol Cannon prepares to make a home run.

As Mary Frederickson stands on guard, Jeanne Munns tries to make a basket in the gym used by juniors. Basketball replaces outside sports in bad weather.

Cageball both fascinates and appalls each of these sophomore girls. They must be alert at all times, for teamwork is needed even to lift the large ball.

Mrs. Jessie Ward, who has a full schedule working as matron, checks at the head of the stairs to see how the girls lying on the cots in resting gym are getting along.

Swimming seems to be invigorating to the sophomore girls who often smile as they suffer the pangs of wet hair to have the privilege of a stimulating swim even in the coldest weather.

Interested Girls Delight in Out-of-School Sports

Peppy girls who could be found every Monday and Wednesday afternoons in the gymnasium believed in developing healthy bodies to accompany sound minds. With variety as the password they participated in activities ranging from doing stunts on the trampoline to challenging a team of women teachers to a volley ball game.

The entire student body remembers this game which was directed by the officers—Ann McGuire, president; Pat Davenport, vice-president; Eleanor Borland, secretary; Joanna Smith, treasurer; Annette Poole, historian; and Pat Merriman, point chairman. They were supervised by the head sponsor, Miss Madeleine McDonald.

Patty David, after winning the ping-pong championship, stands willing to challenge any brave soul who will dare to play her.

Since the tournaments are open to non-members as well as members, Patti Jones reigns as a victor in archery competition.

JoAnn Westgate, junior, displays the form she used to emerge victorious in the playoff of the annual tennis championship tournament in October.

Hildra Landers, Janet Killion, Marilyn Dunn, Vonda Rose, Joanna Smith, Eleanor Borland, Mae Crouch, and Margaret Ryan smile and thank Barbara Coachman (center), the industrious captain of their winning hockey team.

Annette Poole, Pat Davenport, Ann McGuire, Eleanor Borland, Pat Merriman, and Joanna Smith, officers of the Girls' Recreation Association, begin the first regular business meeting with an initiation service for new members.

Synchronettes Swim for Water Ballet Extravaganza

To foster an interest in water ballet and to give girls a chance to perform in one, Synchronettes was organized six years ago. All year the girls worked toward the swimming extravaganza.

The theme of this year's show, which was presented April 21-23 in the Edison High School pool, was Music on Water, a thirteen-act performance of intricate formations and colorful lighting. Jackie Neal, Lynn Yelton, Nancy Newton, and Carleen Baird were elected student coaches.

Amidst the many practices thirty girls and their instructor, Miss Margaret Honegger, found time in December to go by bus to a water ballet clinic in Norman sponsored by the University of Oklahoma.

The officers were Carolyn Clark, president; Sally Albin, vice-president; Suzanne Savage, secretary and treasurer; and Janet Earlougher, historian.

Sitting on the edge of the pool, favorite spot for mermaids, the cabinet meets—Jackie Neal, coach; Janet Earlougher, historian; Carolyn Clark, president; Lynn Yelton, coach; Sally Albin, vice-president; Suzanne Savage, secretary-treasurer.

This happy group of water belles—Jackie Neal, Sally Albin, Carolyn Anderson, Carleen Baird, Carolyn Clark, and Lynn Yelton — anticipate their approaching show in rehearsal time.

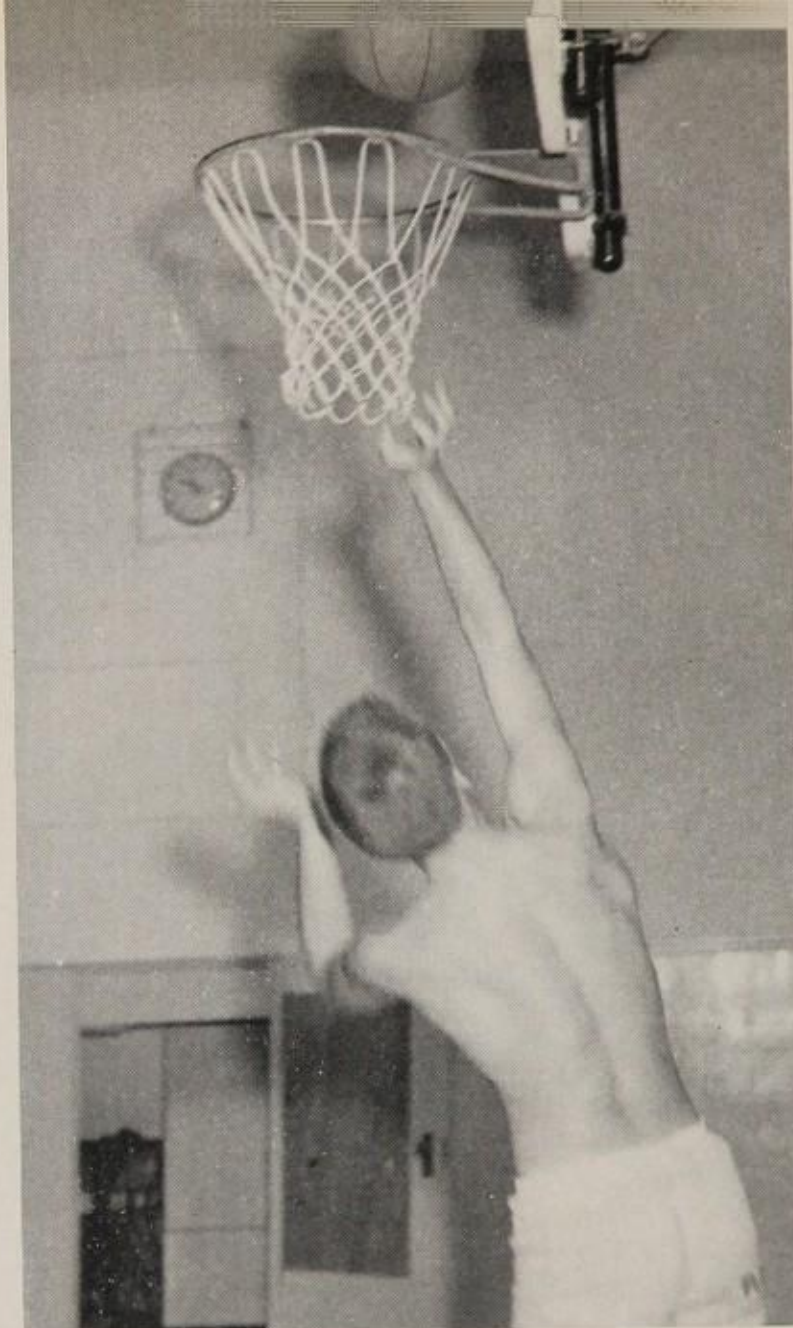

Pausing a moment for a picture during one of their practices for the water show, Carleen Baird, Lynn Yelton, Sally Wolf, and Suzanne Hendrix spend hours swimming to make the performance a splendid event.

Demonstrating before boys in his physical fitness class, Coach Bob Pyle performs on the parallel bars to show the way to do a head stand. Watching the skill of their instructor, Gene Willsey, Mike Roark, David Woodward, and Richard Wheeler hope that they will master the body-building piece of equipment.

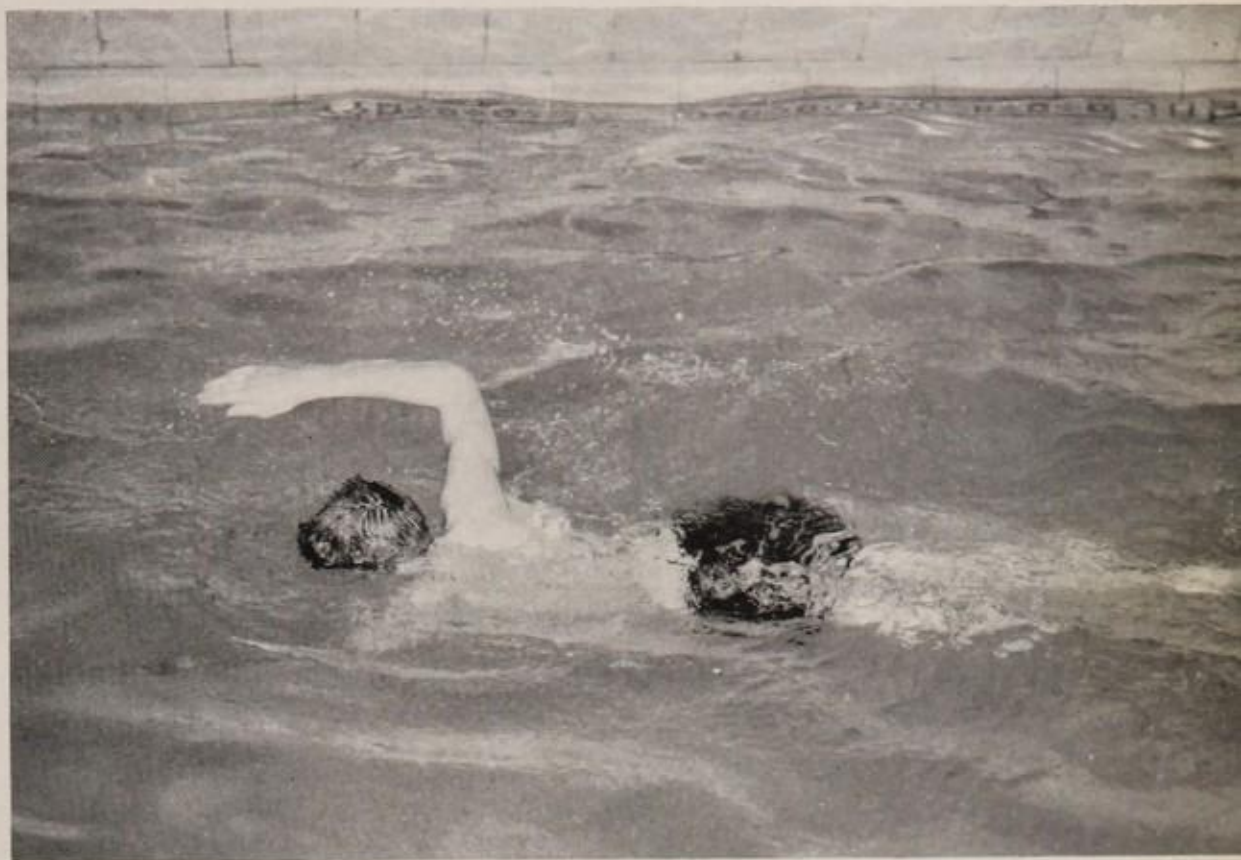

Many things are included in learning to play basketball: practicing, learning techniques and skills, and hard work to become good. Finding it all worth while but a hard job, David Ray strives for a lay-up.

Regular physical education classes, required of sophomores and juniors, help to keep boys fit and to develop their aptness for sports. During one phase of the program members may be seen reaching for their toes when calisthenics is the order of the day.

In another portion of the physical fitness class, working out on the trampoline, Roy Helscel exhibits his acquired skill by springing into the air with a forward flip.

Working out in the boys' physical education pool, Larry Glass swims continuously from one end of the pool to the other in an attempt to strengthen both his stroke and his kick, which are extremely important to swimmers.

Boys' Physical Education Increases Sportsmanship

Many boys who learn the grappling fundamentals of holds, pins, and quick escapes enjoy the robustness of bodily contact experienced by wrestlers. Dennis Walker and Charles Foster, both juniors who are working out on mats in the wrestling room during their second quarter gym class, have an opportunity to test their strength, show their skill, and pin their men.

Block-and-Tackle Crew Hoists Central Sports Fame

"Suddenly last summer" beneath the blazing, southwestern sun, Central's ironclad gridiron crew began its rigorous two and a half hour practice sessions. As soon as school began, the boys were able to practice only once daily rather than the usual twice; thus their already grueling training periods became even more intense.

The year's football highlight came early in the season when the Braves captured the city championship in the Round-Robin tournament at Skelly Stadium. Making the thrill-

Hustling to defeat the blue and gold team from Will Rogers, Bub Johnson (22), Robert Nelson (32), Palmer Koontz (54), and several other husky Braves bear down on the Roper ball lugger to make sure that he does not gain the necessary yardage for a first and ten. Lucky Beattie (41), Tom Tomshany (65), and Walter Walters (11) prove their worth with heads-up football.

Ironically the Braves encountered a rash of tooth injuries this year when Tom Tomshany, Richard Beattie, Bub Johnson, and Raymond Porter all had teeth either loosened or knocked out.

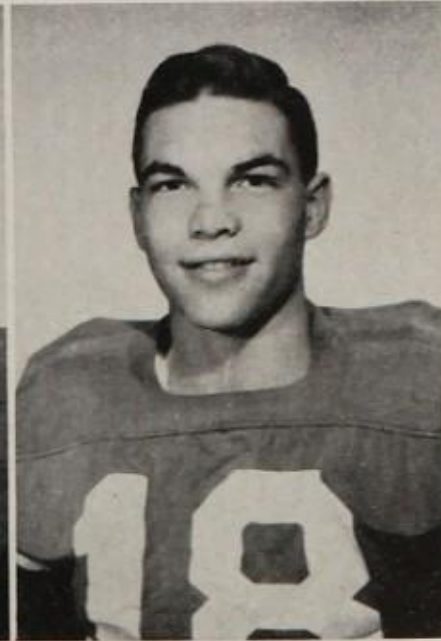

A long-remembered test of endurance for the team was the game played in far-off Ada in freezing 20 degree weather and a bitter, 35-mile-an-hour north wind. Here a handful of die-hard fans viewed a case of football "a la mode!"

Braves Deal Double Disaster to Dangerous Ropers

The traditionally decisive battle with Rogers was one of the year's most exciting football events, for it determined the Oklahoma Six Conference line-up to a great extent. With the Ropers leading, 20-7, the Braves chalked up one of the biggest upsets of the season by scoring 15 points in the final quarter of play.

Another victory over the Ropers was had by Central's B-squad, which tallied a rousing 48-18 in a bout with the Rogers B-team.

The sophomore boys had a commendable season, winning six and tying two out of ten games. In the defeat of McLain's varsity, fullback Danny Smith made the longest run of the squad's season, going 97 yards for a touchdown. The Braves are depending on Jim Seabolt, only sophomore to letter, Danny Smith, John Hammond, Mike Dean, and Johnny Morrison for glowing action during next year's season. The boys worked hard to master fundamental skills their first year.

Trying to get off a long punt, Dick Baldwin (33) puts his kicking toe into the pigskin. Ready to block the threatening opponent from Booker T. Washington, Richard Beattie (41) with a determined attitude swerves to meet the oncoming Hornet.

Central's outstanding offensive play of the season occurred during the Rogers game when halfback Dick Baldwin returned a punt 97 yards for a touchdown. Unfortunately for the Braves, Dick pulled a muscle in his leg as a result of this play and was out the rest of the season. Remarkable defensive action was shown in the clash with Bartlesville. The Wildcats had the ball on Central's 20-yard line with fourth down and one yard to go when Palmer Koontz crashed through from his line-backer position to checkmate the Bartlesville halfback.

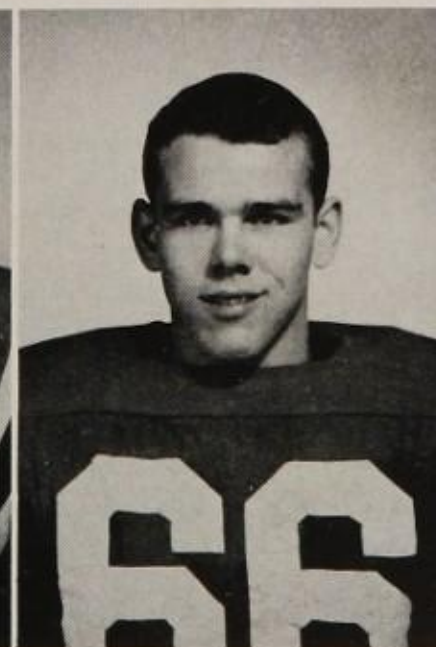

Tying for third in the conference, the Braves were able to boast two all-state players—Palmer Koontz and Raymon Taylor.

Central harriers met stiff competition when they initiated their season October 9 at the Oklahoma University Invitational Meet. At this first encounter of the year they finished in second place; however Wayne Irsch captured a first for individual honors. One week later at the Oklahoma Baptist University Invitational Meet the team finished third. Joe Braughton won second place in the the two-mile-course run.

The season was one of ups-and-downs. Central tied Edison for first place in the city meet. Then at the Oklahoma State University Invitational Meet the Braves placed second. Later at the Rogers Invitational Meet they won third. Braughton outdistanced his rivals for first place. The team ended the season by coming in second at the state meet. Irsch and Braughton took second and third respectively.

Before the cheers of the football fans had died away, Central's basketball team was getting into full swing.

In the Hale tournament Central defeated Ardmore 37-32. In the second game Rogers defeated the Braves 44-42 in an overtime. Harvey Haddock led the team in scoring. This loss, however, did not cause new head coach, Mr. Eddie Sutton, much worry. He set out to correct the team's mistakes.

The Braves got to test what they had learned against Edison. Central upset Edison

With his Edison opponent in hot pursuit Fred Blakemore scores another two points for Central's cause. In his junior year Fred did not get to see much action, but since that time he has developed into one of the mainstays of the team. His ability to handle the ball is hard to top.

Roundballers Finish Schedule With 11-10 Record in an overtime 51-46. Harvey Haddock, Jerry Hill, and Nolan Padgett played outstanding roles in the come-from-behind win.

During mid-season play the Braves tumbled Webster in an upset win. Haddock played one of his best games of the year in scoring 22 points. Gary Howard played a great defensive game holding Webster's star player, John Hawkins, to seven points.

Later in the season Central stunned Bartlesville, previously unbeaten and ranked number two in the state. Fred Blakemore and Haddock tied for scoring honors with fourteen points.

The team fell into a slump at the close of the season and lost the last five games. Even with this bad finish they had a 11-10 win-loss record for the season.

Nolan Padgett and Fred Blakemore acted as co-captains for the 1959-60 season.

In the Central-Booker T. Washington game Gary Howard (24) drives in hard for a lay-up. The basket was good, but it was not enough to stop the "stinging" Hornets. Booker T. was in excellent form as usual and went on to win the game 49-36.

Swimmers Take Second Place To Climax Successful Season

Under the guidance of Coach "Rosy" Nolan, who had not previously instructed a swimming team, the Central tankers emerged with a good season.

Since they had only seven returning lettermen and other teams were reportedly strong, the prediction was that the group would not place in the state.

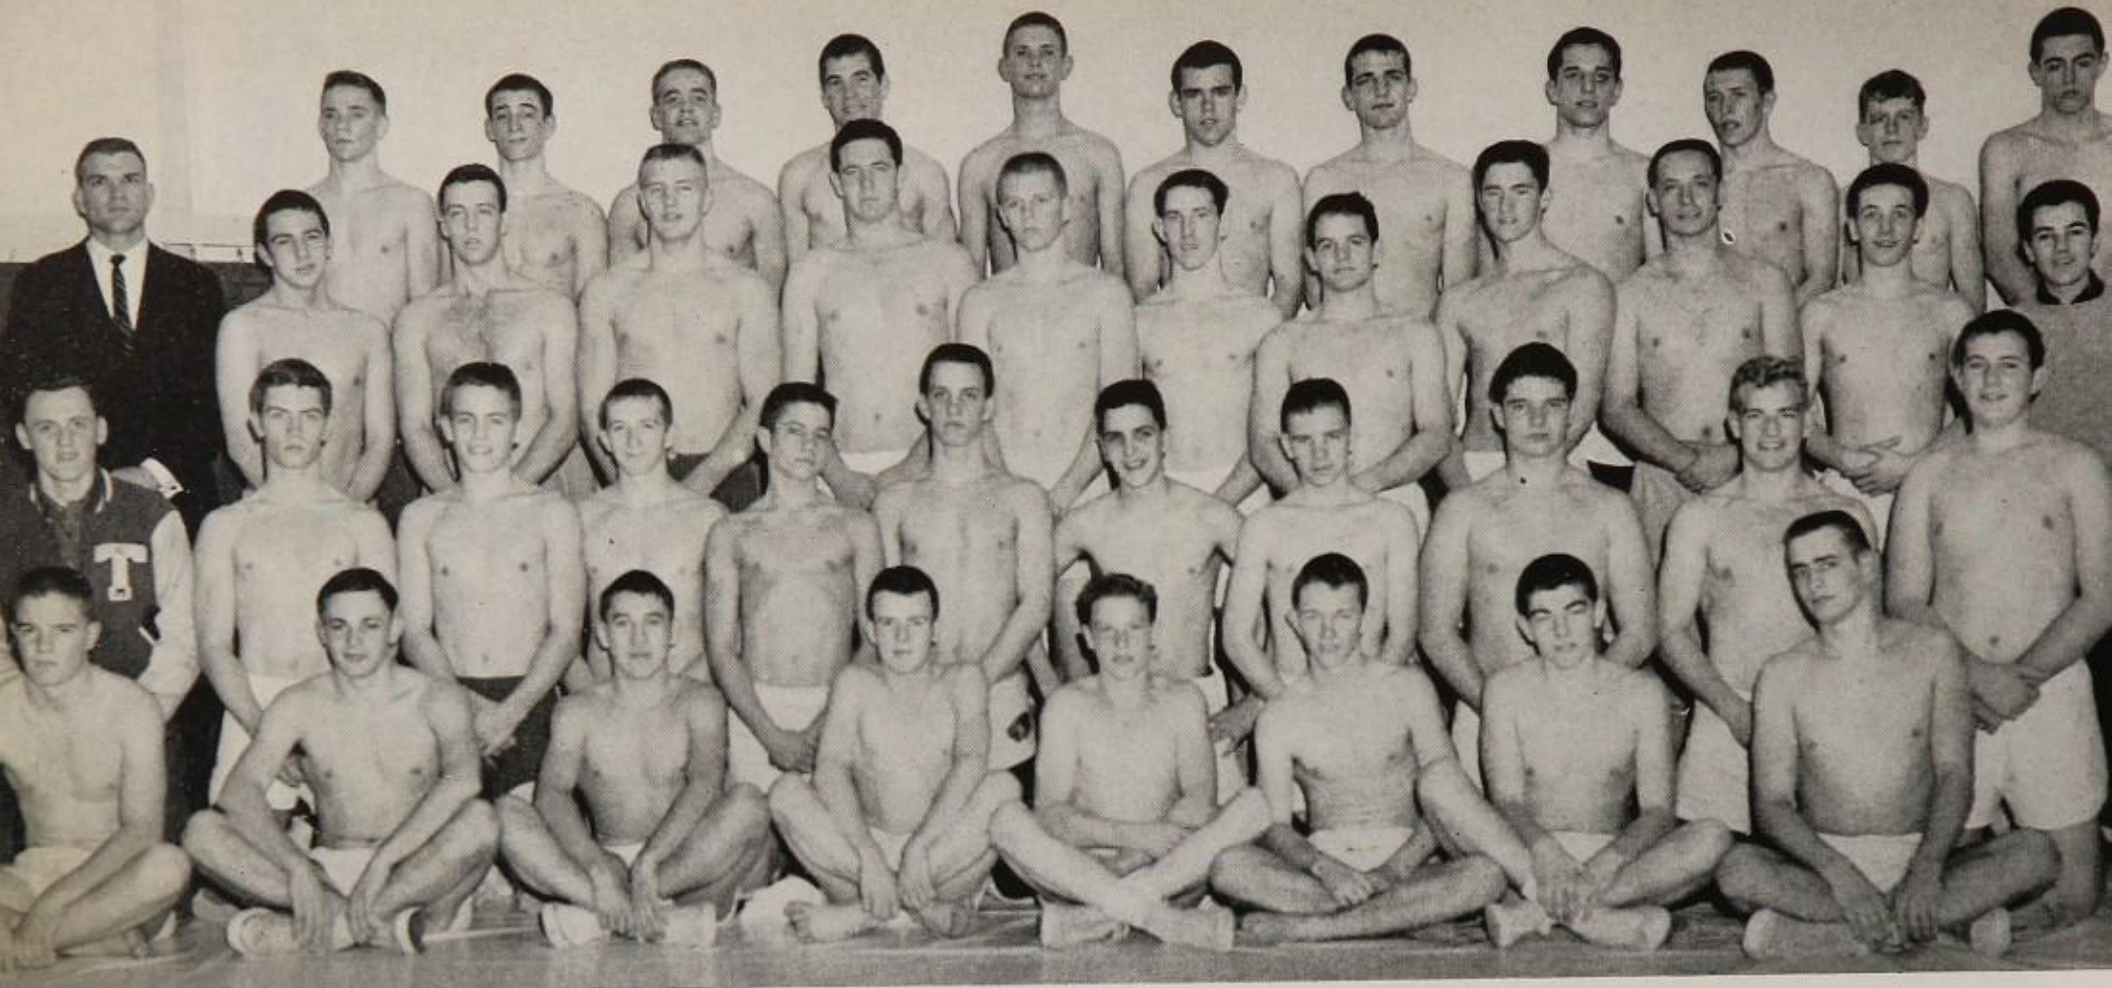

Although the boys lost their first dual competition, they came back with determination and won six out of nine contests in the regular season. The swimmers then went to the all-city meet, where they captured second place. The following week they competed in the state tournament and returned with a shining second place trophy.

Getting off to a flying start, Ken Hughes is ready to go "all out" for the forty-yard freestyle in which he must race two lengths against the Coffeyville swimmers.

The Braves, coached by Ned Blass, got off to a slow start, losing two in a row to undefeated Tulsa Edison and to Ponca City, defending state champions. They came back strong in an impressive victory over Stillwater. Individual Grapplers Wrest Championship Medals Sparked by three championships won by Doug Blenkarn, Charles White, and Roy Brewer at the Edison tournament, the Braves showed they were grapplers with whom to be reckoned. Also adding valuable team points were John Babb and George Trickel, who won second place medals; and Pete Manolakis, who came in third.

Doug Blenkarn, Steve Hurst, and George Trickel came through with championships at the regional tournament which saw the Braves tie the Webster Warriors for third. Backing up these men with points were Mike King, D. R. Cromer, Roy Brewer, John Babb, and Pete Manolakis.

At the state wrestling tournament Roy Brewer, D. R. Cromer, and Pete Manolakis won fourth place medals.

At the close of the season the boys elected John Babb as their captain. John, a senior, was also high point man on the Brave squad.

Making an attempt to secure a pin during the Webster match, John Babb, one of Central's two-year lettermen, has a half nelson hold. Living up to the expectations of the fans, John goes on to win a victory over his opponent with a score of 5 to 1.

Hardballers Thrill Rooters With Three Shut-out Games

Brave baseballers finished the 1958-1959 season in a big way with a record of 14 wins and 4 losses. One of the great thrills came in the regionals when George Willis, a two-year letterman, pitched a no-hit game against Booker T. The final score was 14-0.

Coached by Mr. Clyde Charvoz, the hardballers had three shut out games—Sapulpa 30-0, Webster 1-0, and Okmulgee 14-0. Giving the team backing were four returning lettermen — Mike Borden, Frank Fortney, Maynard Walters, and George Willis.

The season record shows that the team had three winning streaks. The boys started the season with five wins, then lost three, shot back with six more wins, then lost one more, and finally won the last three.

Gary Howard, first baseman who collected three hits in four trips to the plate, and Harold Hockett, winning pitcher, discuss that 11 to 2 victory over the Sapulpa nine.

Tennis Team Challenges Records of Other Years

The 1959 racketeers climaxed a successful year by the winning of two championships at the Oklahoma Six Conference tournament which was hosted by Central. Mike Bartlett and Bill Austin won first place in the doubles contest, and Mike increased the team's honors with a victory in the singles competition. This time was the first one in four years that such a feat, a dual triumph, was achieved.

As soon as basketball season was completed, near the first of March, rackets appeared and daily practice began. Each match was a challenge, but the squad discovered that their sternest competition came from Rogers and Muskogee.

Mr. Clarence Ehlers concluded thirteen years of caching with a season he considered to be one of his finest. The 1960 group has been instructed by Coach Ned Blass, assisted by returning lettermen, Bill Austin and Walter Brown.

Golfers Outscore Opponents To Win Ten Matches on Links

Brave linksmen did a great job in earning titles for themselves and their school with a final record of ten wins, one tie, and only three losses. The 1959 team came home with a second place title in the Oklahoma Six Conference meet, held at Mohawk Golf Course.

Mr. Robert Jankovitz, science teacher who coached the golfers, kept the squad working during the 1959 season. Sixth period each day found the boys practicing at the various golf courses throughout Tulsa.

The 1960 golf team was in the capable hands of Mr. Eddie Sutton, a new instructor who took over the job of coaching. Sparking the squad were two returning lettermen—Jerry Slack, who had earned two golf letters, and Larry Bocox, who had one letter.

Practicing at the Oaks Country Club golf course, Larry Bocox gives the teeing off form of Jerry Slack a critical eye, for driving power in match play is important.

Thinclads Cop Records In Shot Put and Discus

The boys on the 1959 track squad began training at the beginning of the second semester. The first meet of a ten-meet schedule was the Edison Dual.

Track covered a wide field of competitive activities. In every meet there were a 100-yard dash, a 220-yard dash, and a 440-yard dash. Dick Baldwin placed second in state in the 440-yard dash. Four boys joined forces for the 880-yard relay and the mile-relay in which Central was second in state. Eddie Davidson broke Central's long standing shot put record with a throw of 52 feet 8 inches, and Mike Miers gained a new school record by heaving the discus 150 feet 6 inches.

Other events of the track meets were the 120-yard high hurdles, the 180-yard low hurdles, the pole vault, the high jump, the broad jump, and the half mile and the mile runs. The track team placed fourth in the state and in the OSU Relays, the last meet.

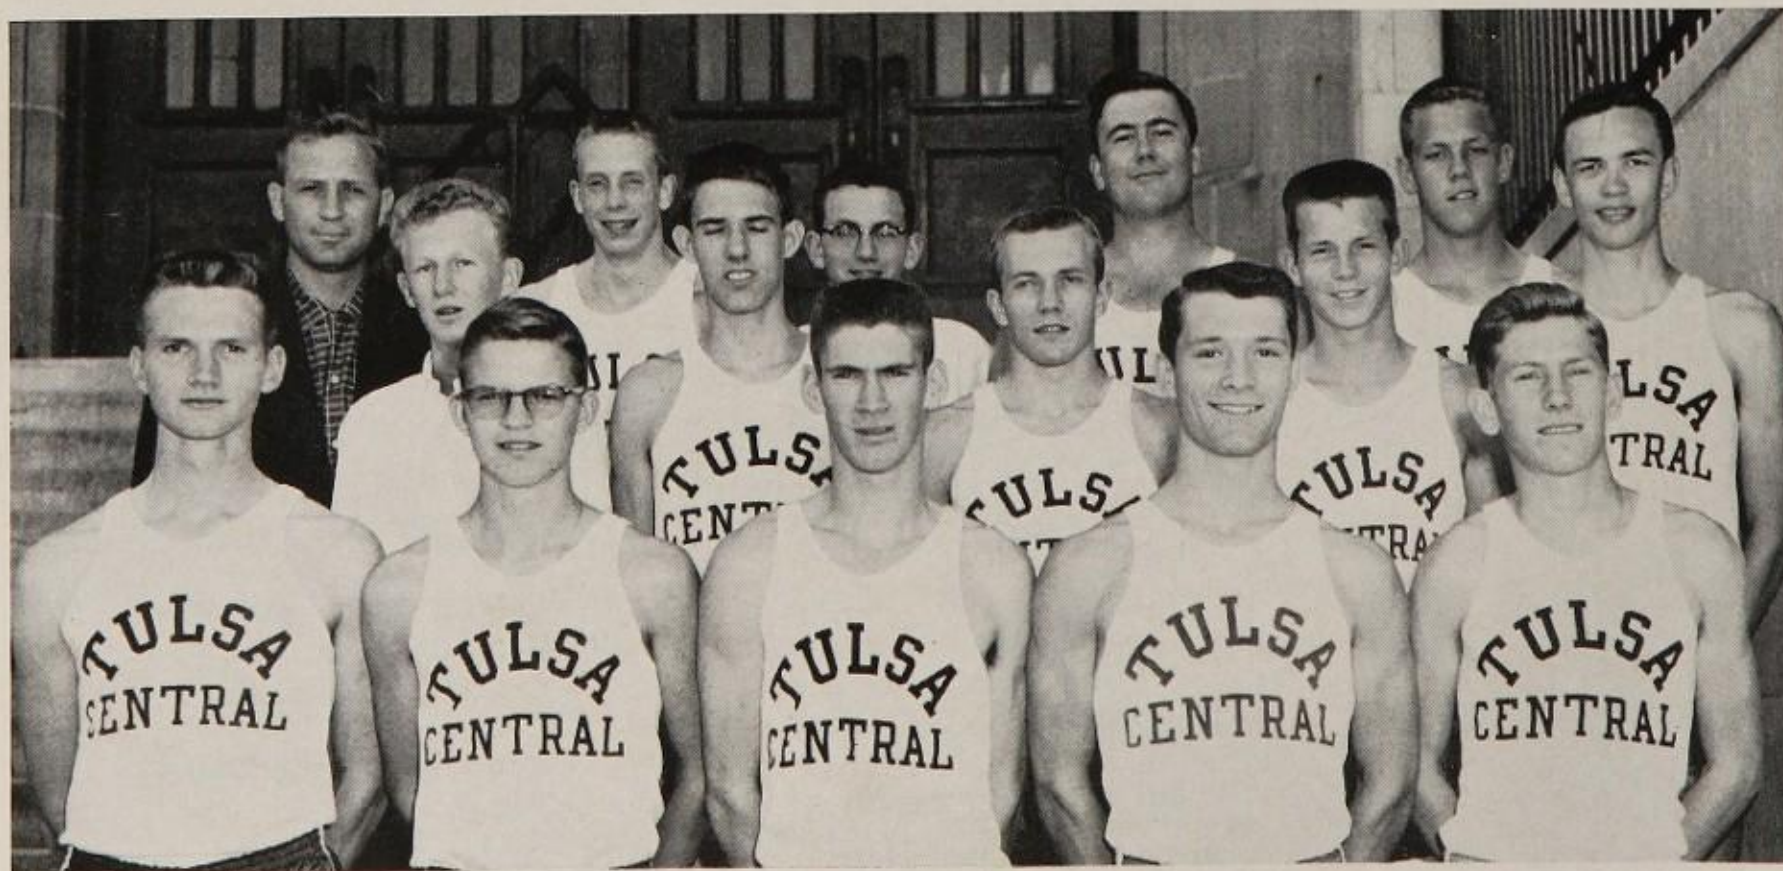

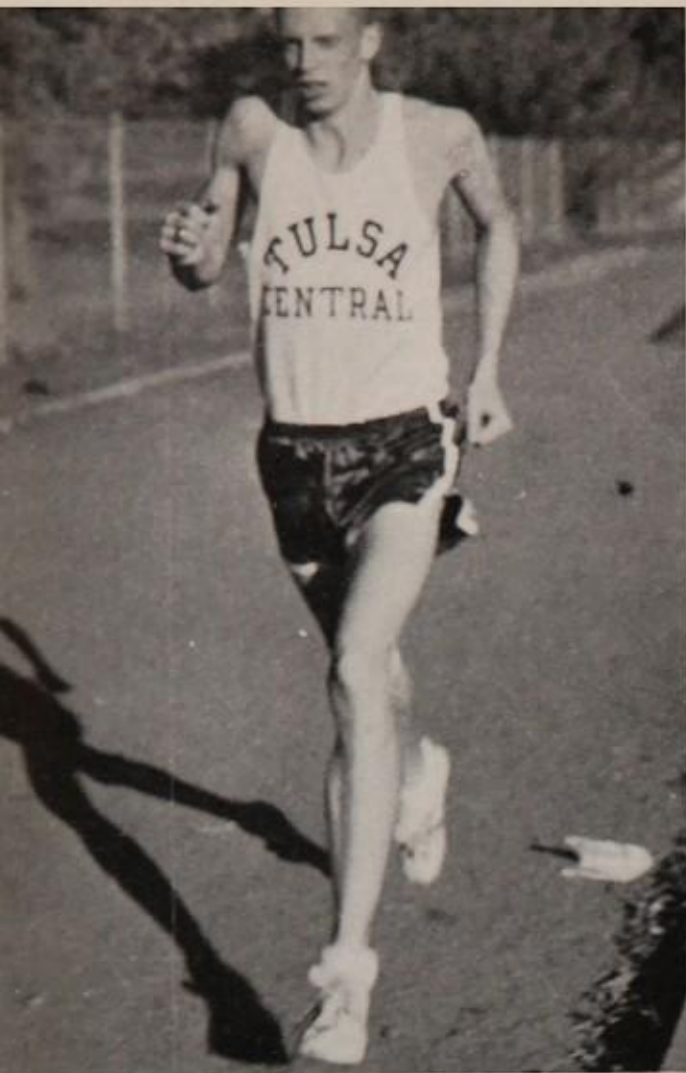

Striving for better timing in the hand-off, Glenn Sharp practices handing the baton to Jerry Poe during one of the many tedious track workouts at the practice field.

Annual Royal Festivities Make Great Impressions

Queen attendants—Pam Quisenberry, Karen Slaybaugh, Carol Armstrong, Diane Hissom, and Martha Barhydt—tired, weary, and happy after the Coronation, gather around her Majesty, Gini Wyant, Miss Central High XXXIX.

"Oh, maybe some day I shall be a queen," are the thoughts that run through the mind of little Kathleen McCray, who looks with wonder and great admiration at Gini Wyant.

Smiling before the camera, male royalty show pleasure at being chosen among the favored few: juniors—Glenn Sharp and Jim Shofner; seniors—one of whom will be King Daze XXXIV, Tom Tomshany, Dick Baldwin, and Nolan Padgett; sophomores—Jim Seabolt, John Redman, and Jerry Hill.

Kelly Reynolds, along with Red Feathers and Scalpers, spends many hours decorating the gym for the Coronation Mixer held in honor of the football queen and her court. Kelly, standing on a ladder, has the tedious task of sticking many colorful balloons to the ceiling of the boy's gym.

Trying to teach Susan Goeppinger the correct way to speak English, Barbara Johnson and Jim Denton in Thespian's annual assembly program even put marbles in Susan's mouth. Nothing they try can erase her cockney accent. Jim and Barbara are perturbed because their efforts are not a success.

Barbara Johnson in one of her usual wild poses as Fairy May has the attention of Sue Clark, who plays Florence, Diane Erbert as the serene Mrs. Savage, and Dick Williamson as Hannibal, the violinist, in a scene from the presentation of "The Curious Savage."

Dave Jackson, the charming Jack Chesney, covers up for Jim Denton, who is Lord Fancourt Babberley in the disguise of Charley Wykeham's aunt. Becky Sauerwein (Kitty Verdun) and Nancy Newton (Amy Spettigue) are greatly impressed with the eccentric aunt.

In the first speech arts play, 'High Ground,' Nurse Phillips (Joan Brix) lies sobbing on the floor while Wardress Pierce and Warder Melling (Diana Finn and Shan Rutherford, respectively) try to restrain Sarat Carn (Odeane Porter) from an hysterical outburst. Calm and comforting Sister Mary (Gini Wyant) quietly gives kind, consoling words to everyone.

Drama Includes Mysteries, Comedies, and 'Oklahoma'

In the spectacular musical comedy, 'Oklahoma,' Jud Fry (Jerry Hobson) vies with Curly (Shan Rutherford) to see who will capture the affection of Laurey (Jo Crider).

Aunt Eller (Barbara Johnson) makes some characteristic quip as Ado Annie (Susan Goeppinger), Will (Mike Roark), Ali (Jim Devinney), and Gertie (Kathy Jackson) chuckle.

Participating in the annual Veteran's Day parade, the marching band, led by Drum Major John Essley and Queen Pam Schwend, struts along the streets of downtown Tulsa. Majorettes—Becky Sauerwein, Kay Pendergrass, Jimmie Lou Dyer, Susan Mackey, and Pat Ivy—go through their precision drills and formations.

Cheerleaders, Majorettes, and Band Lift Spirit

Mr. Donald Linde, band director, and Mr. Don Slagle, assistant principal, boost school spirit at a pep rally in Central Park by wearing the red and white GO, TEAM, GO shirts, which are being sold to all those loyal to Central by the girls in Red Feathers.

During the week before regular class work begins when students come to pick up enrollments, Red Feathers Nancy Newton and Georgann Behrenfeld are on hand to seek memberships for the all-girls' pep organization.

Basketball games would not be complete without the cheerleaders. Danny Dill, Linda Newton, Charlie Miller, Diane Hissom, David Stewart, and JoNelle English, who perform the kneestand, direct the excited crowd of partisan Brave spectators to keep yelling for V-I-C-T-O-R-Y!

Manager of the office, Miss Joyce Saunders, who is putting notices in the teachers' mailboxes, supervises the clerical staff. Under her direction a corps of trained assistants enrolls students and keeps their records, writes official correspondence, makes schedules of classes, and issues school bulletins.

Contributing to the picture of an efficient bank are Rosalie Mendoza, who counts money at one of the cashiers' drawers; Mrs. Joyce Weigant, who supervises the student workers; and Carol McCarty, who types a financial statement for the senior class.

With lunch time nearing Mrs. Vera Ledbetter and Mrs. Etta Jane Piper, cafeteria women who have spent much of the morning at the task, assemble in great quantity the tempting roast beef sandwiches that the student body finds so delicious at the noon hour.

"Going up, anyone?" asks Mrs. Lilla Mae Hughes, who operates for students, faculty, and those who make deliveries to Central the elevator on the east side of the building. After she admits her four passengers—Pam Lyons, Trish Babb, Emily Stone, and Jack Dressler—she cautions them to face the front and to tell her the numbers of the floors they want.

Helpers Perform Tasks for Benefit of All Students

The custodial staff includes both students who work part time and adults. Some people who help to keep Central a tidy place in which to spend the day are, standing, Mr. Earl M. Sanders, building superintendent, Mr. George Phillippe, Mike Cloud, Lee Tatum, Bill Sherl, Mr. L. B. Stroud, Mr. M. L. Patterson; kneeling, Ralph Engle, Jack Dressler, Stewart Lafferty.

Bob Stubblefield, Tex Goen, and Walter Brown listen attentively to Karen West who tells them some of the things that she and Sally Ford learned last summer at Oklahoma Girls' State. The boys, who also experienced the thrill of pride in their country at Boys' State, learned the mechanics of politics.

Phases of Patriotism and Goodwill Influence Lives

Boy Scouts serving as flagbearers for general assembly—David Laughlin; John Conwell, carrying the Oklahoma flag; Jack Caine, bearing the United States flag; and Paul Lester—run through a practice session. Two boys will be on duty for the regular opening ritual.

Diana Finn, who won first place for Central in the "Brotherhood in a Democracy" essay contest, looks at the fifty dollar savings bond, the prize from Oklahoma Tire and Supply.

On behalf of Red Feathers Nancy Newton, president, presents Ayse Ercetin, American Field Service exchange student from Turkey, a squad leader's jacket and welcomes her to a joyful year of exciting club activities.

Welcoming a very distinguished Central guest, Mr. M. M. Black visits with Mr. Herb Philbrick as they wait for the beginning of general assembly. Later Mr. Philbrick spoke to the audience about the unusual and dangerous experiences which he encountered when he "led three lives."

To keep the show moving between acts and to display her talent on roller skates, Patti Bell, who performs an interpretation of the familiar record, "Eloise," circles and pantomimes her way through the routines.

"Oh, a hobo's life is a merry life," sings the Rise and Shine chorus of peppy, little dancing tramps with their tattered shirts, baggy pants, and shabby hats—Kay Pendergrass, Carleen Baird, Ayse Ercetin, Lynn Yelton, Carolyn West, and Carrie Jo Callahan.

No one will forget Dogpatch, U.S.A., when Pam Quisenberry, who plays the incomparable Daisy Mae, meets Jim Seabolt in the role of Marryin' Sam or when Diana Finn represents Zsa Zsa and Harvey Haddock turns out to be Daisy Mae's true love, Li'l Abner.

To the music of "Chinatown" Jerrilee Ming, Marsha Wieman, Mary Shirley, Susan Goeppinger, Judy Durkee, Karen West, Cynthia Davis, and Susan Atkins portray in the Pagoda Teahouse scene their version of dance routines of all ages beginning with those of ancient China and coming through to the present day with a modern version of a Chinese Can-Can.

Cosmorama Daze Circles World in Colorful Revue

Daze Band members—Virginia Ford, Steve Duggan, Don Vickburg, John Click, John Guinn, Francine Mullen, Dick Williamson, Bob Wandres, Jack Spencer, Richard Johnson, Don Boyd, Gordon Loucks, John Essley, Paul Kimball, Lowell Cornwell—entertain the audience with two numbers, "Sing, Sing, Sing" and "Latinette." They also accompany Marty Coates' Latin American number.

Leaving through the front doors of their Alma Mater, two seniors of 1960 will forever cherish memories of happy times, warm friendships, and valuable lessons learned.

 Dianne: It's SURE been fun being in choir with this year even though you sing flat quite often. I hope you have many fond memories of this BORING year. Hope you Remember me 100 years from now. Love ya

Diane,

You've really been a Blast in A-cappella this year. and I've really enjoyed knowing you. You are an all-around sharp girl with one stud personality. Good Luck & Be good.
Love you, Timmie

- Diane -
It been fun knowing you for about four years.
You are a nice girl with a nice personality, but you still are hard to figure out.
Love of Jack always

Dianne,
I have really had fun with you this year.
Good luck, and have fun in whatever you do.
Love ya.
Diane
1959-60

Dianne,
although I don't know ^{you} very well. You are a very quiet and sweet girl. It has been very nice knowing you.
Darell Matlock

Diane,
Gym and P.D. were a blast
And now the whole long year has past
I hope the next year, too will see
That you and I still friends will be.

Love,
Marcia

Dianne,
I have enjoyed being in the same gym and class, hope to see you next year. Good luck.
Love,
Marcia
The Honey

To a cute girl, well, we haven't stopped fighting our little wires, so I guess
one day you'll go and I hope that will always be that way.
Istum amicum bonum,
Carol

Dianne
You have a neat personality and good luck in the future.
Love
Paul

Dear Diane,
Well, ol' pal, it looks like this is the end of
P.D. for ever and ever.
I feel so much more personally developed, don't you? (Ugh!)
Hahab luck,
Be good,
Margaret Ritter

To Diana
I hope we be come good friends
Dennis Walker . . . A

A very sweet girl,
best wishes,

Diane

To a real sweet kid.
Lots of luck in the future.

John Harless

Esg.

Deane, you're a real mean girl. Stay lots of love
D

Diane
I've enjoyed knowing you. You're a nice girl, but I'm afraid there's no demand for them.

Dear Diane,
 I think I would have literally perished
 in algebra without you!
 (your help and sometimes homework paper were sincerely appreciated!)
 Our constant joking made algebra sometimes almost bearable!
 Good luck and
 don't be a mathematician!

Barbara Moore

Diane
 It has been great fun
 knowing you, I hope that you will always be in the best of luck,
 Have fun & be jolly, Bob Pshel

Dear Diane,
 I have met quite a few girls, but none like you.
 Thank you very much for the spanking. I am looking forward to next year, although I bet you wish I wouldn't be in a Cappella. Have a

Your friend,
 Joan Hopfinger

Dear Diane,
 I've been a pleasure to be in class with you this year. Please you won't

Diane,
We've been pretty good friends for a fairly long time now, and I've enjoyed it. You're a pretty girl and one I know will always be the nicest and the best. You're really cool, and I'll always be proud to say I know you.

Sincerely,

Ram Schwand

Dear Diane,
I hope you're going on in Latin, 'cause if you are, we can be in a class together. You really have wonderful potential, and I'm sure you will go a long way.

 One of my oldest and most understanding friends.
 The reason I believe we get along so good is we understand one another, agree!! We have some fun together, but we could have more, agree!!
 I had better end this short dissertation before it gets to enveloped, so I want to wish you the best of luck in all your undertakings, what ever they may be. I hope I will be able to see more of you in the future. Be good and be smart.

Diane,
 Well, I'll admit it's very hard to find something to say that will meet Mr.
 Hall's qualifications. I'll just have to name

1. a smile
 2. a brain (a brainiac)
 3. a (with no refrain) grade but I'll better not lie, No that we have had a class together this year. You are somewhat of an inspiration.
 The way you take things in please you strike. Good things, I'll be happy to see you every day.
